Leaders in Harmony On Disarmament

LONDON (Reuters) — The Commonwealth prime ministers Thursday reached general agreement on aims and principles of any East-West world disarmament agreement, authoritative sources said. Discussion was "encouraging."

It was agreed that Red China must play some future role in talks.

FACES FLAME, INSULTS FLY AS CCF RAGES AT SPEAKER

Legislature Near-Shambles At Start of Labor Bill Debate

By PETER BRITTON and ALEC MERRIMAN

Legislature was reduced to near-shambles last night as raging tempers flared into a fist-shaking, name-calling furor over the government's labor legislation and the right of deputy speaker Alex Matthew to sit as an "unbiased" chairman.

It was the most violent explosion of the session.

Labor legislation was momentarily forgotten as CCF

members jumped to their feet to protest the right of Mr.

Matthew to sit in the Speaker's chair because of a letter he wrote the Vancouver Sun Wednesday in support of the labor bill.

St. Patrick's Day, whispered the premier in explanation.

Under these circumstances

the motion was not admitted.

It must be placed on the order paper today.

"This is despicable," said Attorney-General Bonner.

"I'm not interested in any further points of order," said

Mr. Speaker Shantz as more and more CCF members jumped to their feet.

"He's convicted himself in the daily press," said Ran-

Harding, referring to Mr.

Matthew.

"Warning You"

"Honorable member for

Kaslo-Slocan, I'm warning

you..." said Mr. Speaker.

After that the House quieted down again, Mr. Strachan continued with his speech.

The evening started quietly with an explanation of the labor legislation by Labor

Minister Leslie Peterson.

He said the changes in the Labor Relations Act prohibiting political contributions from union dues was necessary to ensure the basic freedom of the individual.

"Very Essence"

"It is basic in a democracy that no one should be required to disclose his political sympathies," he said. "The secret ballot is the very essence of our democracy. If our democracy is to be effective, a person must be able to vote as he pleases, in secret, and support any party financially without making a declaration as to whom he supports."

He said there were numerous collective agreements which now contained various forms of compulsory membership in trade unions and these were recognized and widely accepted.

Be Assured

But the employee paying those dues should be assured that the money collected was used "for legitimate union business and was not chan-nneled into some fund with

"the inviting title" suggesting it is to be used for educational purposes, whereas it is intended and apparently does wind up in support of some political party.

The minister said union members would lose their anonymity under the system of "contracting out" proposed by some unions.

He is labelled, his political sympathies become known and he is vulnerable to discriminatory action," he said.

'Another Perfect Game'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker bowled another perfect game at the Commonwealth prime Ministers' conference, national director Allister Grosart told the opening session of the Conservative party's annual meeting Thursday night.

"It's amazing how he comes up with them," he said.

WELCOME

He told the Progressive Conservative Association that Mr.

Diefenbaker had left London and suggested delegates meet him at Uplands Airport this morning.

Mr. Grosart, who also lashed out at newspaper and television critics who do not spend as much time as the prime minister studying national problems, was cheered by the audience when he referred to

Mr. Diefenbaker and the Commonwealth conference.

NO REFERENCE

He did not refer directly to the South African apartheid issue or other work of the conference.

Mr. Grosart said the Conservatives should embark on

"the greatest grass-roots campaign" in the history of Canadian politics, with a party campaigner and team assigned to every one of the 46,000

polling stations in Canada.

PARTY REPORTS

The first plenary session heard the presidents of four branches of the party and the national director. Delegates stood and applauded when

Mrs. Paul Sauve, widow of the late premier of Quebec and president of the Quebec association, took her place on the platform after the meeting began.

During the day, annual meetings were held by the Progressive Conservative Women's Association, the Young Progressive Conservatives of Canada, and the Progressive Conservative Student Federation.

Sky's the Limit for Canada If People Unite, Expert Says

TORONTO (CP) — A unified

Canadian people can go to successes unthought of up to now.

H. George De Young, recently appointed chairman of the National Productivity Council, said Thursday night in a panel discussion on Canadian trade.

To reach such goals, however, Mr. De Young stated,

there must be co-operation among all parts of the economy

— management, government, labor, agriculture, primary and secondary production in industries. He added:

"Let's feel that one unemployed member of the Canadian team is as important as another, whether he be wheat farmer, miner, fisherman or steelworker. Let's get a job for him in Canada."

He spoke at a dinner and panel discussion held under the joint sponsorship of the Canadian Exporters' Association and the Board of Trade of Metropolitan Toronto.

FREE TRADE

Robert Winters, president of

Rio Tinto Mining Company of Canada Ltd., and former minister of public works, said

Canada should follow a policy looking to freer world trade,

but concluded:

"While I am strongly opposed to increased barriers against imports, I do agree that a reduction of imports into Canada is desirable and should be one underlying objective of Canadian economic policy.

NEW ERA

"I also believe, however, that in this new era of revived international competition and of the emergence of great trading giants with enormous productive capacity, there is a special responsibility upon the government and people of Canada to agree to take special measures to ease the very serious problems of adjustment that result therefrom, and to promote the development of our secondary manufacturing industries."

J. Douglas Gibson, general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, stated:

NO CRANCE

"There is no chance of keeping up in the technological race in a closed type of economy that tries to do a bit of everything. A country, unless it is on the scale of the United States or Russia, has to specialize if it is to keep pace."

Mr. Gibson said that while

Canada is more dependent on the United States economy than it used to be, it probably has no more vulnerable or exposed.

UN Raps Fingers Of South Africa

UNITED NATIONS (CP) —

The General Assembly cen-

sured South Africa Thursday for repeatedly ignoring United Nations resolutions aimed at eventual freedom for the territory of Southwest Africa.

By a vote of 74 to 0 with nine abstentions, the assembly approved a resolution that criticized South African moves to ward annexation of the huge territory on Africa's southwest coast — a former League of Nations mandate.

The action came on the heels of South Africa's decision to withdraw from the Commonwealth because of criticism of its white supremacy policies.

There was speculation that South Africa might also withdraw from the United Nations.

Only two members of the Commonwealth — Britain and Australia — were among the nine abstainers. The others were Belgium, the Dominican Republic, Finland, France, Luxembourg, Portugal and Spain.

DESPITE FEELING

The United States voted for the resolution despite the feeling of Britain, France and other colonial powers that it had legal shortcomings.

It called on UN members closely associated with South Africa to bring pressure on that country to change its policies in the former German-ruled territory it took over in 1915, and governs under a

League of Nations mandate.

Verwoerd said he had in fact agreed to the inclusion in the South Africa's Exit Starts Great Debate

LONDON (Reuters)—A great debate raged Thursday through the Commonwealth on whether it would flourish or disintegrate as the result of South Africa's withdrawal.

Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd of South Africa set the tone for the debate during his withdrawal statement at the conference of Commonwealth leaders here Wednesday. He said his move meant the beginning of the Commonwealth's "disintegration."

'GOOD THING'
In London, Labor Party leader Hugh Gaitskell told the House of Commons:

"The outcome strengthens our faith that the Commonwealth is an institution of great potential value for humanity."

Malayan Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman said South Africa's departure is "a good thing."

"The Commonwealth can now mean something."

If mildew stains appear on washable fabrics, launder and sun-dry. If stain remains, use lemon juice and salt, sodium perborate, or any other bleach safe for the fabric.

African nationalists and most Asian leaders welcomed South Africa's departure.

AGREES
Southern Rhodesia's premier, Sir Edgar Whitehead, agreed with Verwoerd's "disintegration" prediction.

Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the Rhodesia-Nyasaland federation, said dangerous precedent was being set by interference in the internal affairs of a Commonwealth nation.

Some Relieved

Commonwealth Rift Saddens Loyalists

LONDON (CP)—South Africa's quiet exit causes a deep sadness among many who value the Commonwealth association. In some cases, these feelings are accompanied by a sense of inevitability, almost of relief, that the question has been squarely faced and the decision courageously taken.

KNEW CONSEQUENCES
Canadian leaders, who played an important part in bringing the question to a head, acted in full knowledge of the consequences. Their misgivings are perhaps a shade less acute than in the case of Britain, which has long enjoyed a special relationship with South Africa, and Australia and New Zealand. Prime Minister Menzies, whose country has a "white Australia" policy, is deeply troubled by the move.

NEWS HITS HARD
Among South Africans in Britain, persons of British stock took the news hard. A senior news agency correspondent, who favors a liberal approach to South Africa's problems, said:

"This means that the old Commonwealth based on emotion and sentiment and family is dead. Now it is a new Commonwealth, based on what you call realism and rigid principles. It won't be the same again."

Kennedy Scores Victory

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate last night approved President Kennedy's top-priority program to pay jobless workers $1,000,000,000 in extra unemployment benefits after narrowly rejecting an amendment that would have limited the plan.

Senate approval was a major legislative victory for Kennedy, who had dubbed the measure as his No. 1 anti-recession bill.

The bill would provide up to 13 weeks of extra jobless benefits to unemployed workers who have exhausted their state payments. This means some workers could receive as much as 39 weeks of unemployment benefits. The program would be financed by higher taxes on employers.

Nothing Gained

DESPITE national CCF Leader Hazen Argue's wild expressions of delight over South Africa's decision to quit the Commonwealth and at least one newspaper's front page attempt to reduce the matter to the low level of a corn-fed joke, the majority of Canadians will look upon the departure of a long-time sister Dominion with sincere regret.

It is doubtful if anyone has gained anything in this unfortunate development. Rather it might be shown in a cold analysis of the matter that much has been lost.

The close family link between the Commonwealth and the million-and-a-half white South Africans who oppose and abhor the policies of Dr. Verwoerd's Nationalist Party has now been shattered. Lost now is the hope of 10 million South African negroes who look to the Commonwealth for moral support, and the hope that "family" pressure in time might break down the Afrikaners' resistance to change.

It can be said that Dr. Verwoerd has had his way. The Commonwealth nations who attacked him on his apartheid policies—no matter how highly principled their objectives were—have played into his hands. Dr. Verwoerd has never made any bones about the fact that he wanted to leave the Commonwealth because he resented the continual interference by Britain and other Commonwealth countries in the internal affairs of South Africa.

However, under pressure from the opposition parties, and as a sop to the millions of white, black and Asian South Africans who oppose him, he agreed to stay on if it met with the approval of the other Commonwealth members.

In bringing pressure to bear on him, and in fact, presenting him with no other alternative but to resign, the other Commonwealth nations have written the final chapter of the Boer war as a victory for the Boers.

The Afrikaners now have the republic they wanted and fought for nearly 60 years ago—cut off from the interference and opinions of the rest of the world—where they can at last be a law unto themselves.

To Mr. Argue, in his safe and comfortable Canadian home, this may be victory. But to millions of South Africans of every color who looked to us for help it spells defeat and disaster.

Setting the Record Straight

PERHAPS now is as good a time as any to set the record straight on events leading up to and the final signing of the NORAD agreement in order to dispel the confusion which seems to exist in the minds of certain local and national officers of the Liberal Party over the matter.

Ever since the National Liberal Party leader, Hon. Lester B. Pearson, in an astonishing about-face earlier this year, called for Canada to withdraw from the NORAD defence partnership, junior spokesmen of the party have been attempting to prove that the Liberal Party had nothing to do with the original agreement.

However, fact at times is hard to disprove—and the fact is that the former Liberal government conducted all the preliminary negotiations with the United States Defence Department leading up to the actual physical signing of the authorizing documents.

It is also fact that the only reason it did not give formal approval to the scheme was because it was unexpectedly ousted from office by the Conservative government.

It is also fact that the preliminary NORAD negotiations took place over a period of years between the United States government and the Canadian Liberal government. Mr. Pearson referred to this in the House on June 10, 1958, when he said: "I know that in national defence they were discussing the integration of air defence headquarters over months and over years with their opposite numbers in Washington. I also know that officials of the Department of External Affairs were asked to attend these preliminary official discussions."

Mr. Pearson added that although the matter was placed on the Cabinet agenda by the National Defence Department it was never discussed.

The reason why it was not discussed was indeed a very good one. There was in truth an election in the offing.

It is also fact that on assuming office the Conservative government recognized the matter as one on which the very survival of the nation could well depend, and acted with great urgency and responsibility in bringing about an interim agreement with Washington—on the recommendation of senior Canadian defence officers—within five weeks of taking over.

Final agreement, of course, was not reached until May 19, 1958, and on June 19 of the same year the House of Commons approved the joint plan with a vote of 200 to 8. It is interesting to note that the only dissidents were the eight CCF members—all the Liberal members in the House, led by Mr. Pearson, voted in his favor.

These then, are the facts. Embarrassing as they are to the Liberal Party in its vacillating policies of the present day, they remain on the record.

Keep the Dickering

AN unusual approach to this year's civic budget has been suggested by Alderman Mooney. Department heads, he has proposed, should be told that they will have the same amount of money to spend this year as they had last, and that they must cut their coats to fit that cloth.

In this way, he maintains, a tax-rate increase could be avoided and so could the "dickering and dackering"—spontaneous onomatopoeia can be so apt—of council committees spending long hours trimming departmental estimates, only to see them cut again by council as a whole.

No one likes taxes to rise, and it would be pleasant if the problem could be solved so simply. But would it be right?

The mayor and aldermen are properly concerned with the plight of the many Victoria taxpayers living on small, fixed incomes. But their staff advisers have repeatedly suggested to them that it is only penny-wise to tie civic maintenance and development to the least ability to pay.

Afternoon Siesta

THE afternoon Times returns to the charge that by becoming the Conservative candidate in the forthcoming Esquimalt-Saanich by-election Mr. George Chatterton is to blame for the present unemployment situation. This will astonish the unemployed no less than the voters of this riding and all other rational beings, to whom such political polemics will seem as distorted as argument will could be. The Times is noticeably silent on the equal retroactive responsibility which by this token would fall on the Liberal candidate, Mr. David Groos, for the actions and utterances of his party leaders.

The Colonist cheerfully accepts retroactive responsibility, however, for a typescript error which confused the Liberal candidate with his eminent naval brother, Commodore Harold Groos. It feels sure neither of these gentlemen was as upset as the Times and some local Liberals affect to be.

When it comes to historical references, however, perhaps the Times

Nor would the city merely be standing still if last year's budget were adopted again. Because of pay increments and other rising costs, less work could be done with the same amount of money.

Clinging to the same budget also would perpetuate, for the departments that were the chief losers in last year's budget debate, the treatment they received then, even though this year they might have new champions.

Finally, and not least important, considering how much money to spend and where to spend it is an aldermanic function of utmost concern to the people of the city. By their dickering and dackering at budget time the mayor and aldermen are largely known, and the voters have a right, when the next election comes, to be able to recall that this alderman opposed more improvement of street lighting and that one said there was nothing wrong with the roads.

should awake from its afternoon siesta. It speaks of the wartime Liberal cabinet in Ottawa in such glowing terms as "the most brilliant in our history". This was the brilliance, it can scarcely be forgotten, which included the deplorable political manoeuvring of Mackenzie King in the military manpower crisis, his shabby treatment of Defence Minister Ralston, and his boozing by Canadian soldiers overseas. The latter at least held a much different viewpoint from the Times.

Nor, unfortunately for the Prime Minister, was Mr. King "a former Minister who held office longer than any other leader in Commonwealth history." That honor belongs to Sir Godfrey Huggins, later Lord Malvern, who was continuously a Commonwealth premier for over 23 years, first as head of the Southern Rhodesia administration and then as prime minister of the larger grouping known as the Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland. By count of days his record is 8,451 to 7,828 for Mr. King.

"If ye miss and hit one of yon bonnie submarines it'll be bang—goodnight Europe."

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wax-of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

I SAID yesterday I might explore sketchily the flavor of the United Kingdom Information Office's latest edition of "Britain: An Official Handbook." Perhaps the people of that aspersed isle deserve first notice. They are, as Canadians are beginning to be in their own creation of a new race, a composite grouping of character and racial strains.

Pre-Celts, Celts, Romans, Norsemen, Anglo-Saxons and Normans went into the making of present-day Britons, of whom roughly 52,000,000 are densely packed, 552 persons to the square mile. Scotland claims over 5,000,000 of them, and in addition Northern Ireland, a component of the United Kingdom, counts nearly one-and-a-half million human heads.

It is interesting to look back on history and note that when William the Conqueror landed at Hastings—1066 and all that—the British population is estimated to have been about 2,000,000. There were many more empty spaces then.

As is well known the Britons have been a monging race, which derives perhaps from the fact that no part of the British Isles is as much as 75 miles from tidal water. That has helped to make them rugged.

The British people live in 16,250,000 houses, about one in every four of which is owned by local authorities. Municipalities are landlords in a big way over there. Nearly 8,000,000 of the population are children and young people at school, college or technical institution.

Once a Briton always a Briton. A citizen of the U.K. does not lose his citizenship by acquiring the nationality of another country. And by British law all Commonwealth citizens are deemed to be British subjects, free to enter, stay or leave the United Kingdom without restriction.

Incidentally, among its experts during the past century have been 23,000,000 Scots, Englishmen, Welshmen, and Irishmen, who have gone out into the wider world to help make their own and the fortunes of other lands.

Another notable export is whisky, primarily that labelled "Scotch," and at the moment there are stocks on hand amounting to 265,000,000 gallons, nicely maturing for thirsty palates overseas. Britons themselves spent about $300,000,000 on alcoholic beverages during 1959, but—and it's a big but—two-thirds of this went into the government's tax coffers.

The handbook notes a marked decrease in drunkenness in Britain since the last century.

They are a home-loving folk, the British people. Two-thirds of them spend their holidays by their own seaside stretches, although the urge to travel afar is catching on. Over 3,000,000 packed their grips last year for a vacation abroad, mainly to the Continent.

They are a sporting lot. They play soccer, rugby, hockey, tennis, golf, lacrosse (mainly women), netball, polo; go hunting, shooting, bowling, rowing, sailing, motorboating. They bowl, box, wrestle, play billiards and climb mountains, swim and watch horse and greyhound racing.

Soccer football, the popular game of the masses, drew 33,000,000 to league games last season, and nearly 247,000,000 were staked in the football pools. Some 8,000 professionals and 650,000 amateurs strip weekly for this athletic pursuit.

Britons own 5,000,000 private cars and 10,000,000 television sets, and the British Navy has been using canned food since 1813. Britain's toy industry is the largest in Europe. Its farms are highly mechanized; a tractor to every 34 acres of arable land.

A few more isolated facts, before the end of the column is reached:

London contains over eight million people, nearly half the total Canadian population. Nine hundred museums and art galleries are open to the public. Public libraries hold over 71,000,000 books and make 445,000,000 loans a year. Britons like to dance, 5,000,000 of them stopping lively every week; there are 4,000 public dance halls and over 4,000 schools of ballroom dancing. Four thousand local horticultural societies cater to the needs of gardeners. And four out of every five families do their own home decorating.

Such is a capsule sketch of British habit, trait and life in general.

Washington Calling

Everything Is Black or White

By MARQUIS CHILDS

THE hottest stock on the political bourse today is Barry M. Goldwater right-wing preferred. In the light of the stock analysis it is churning in an active and uncertain Republican market.

Whether the Senator from Arizona will be the nominee of his party for president in 1964 or '68 only the boldest prophet would venture to say. But he has at least two distinct advantages that have made him a national figure in a relatively short time.

The first is his personality. He is vigorous, vital, attractive, with seemingly tireless energy that enables him to make on the average of three to four speeches a week in every corner of the country. This weekend he is concentrating on Florida with a formal speech and several appearances.

A second conspicuous advantage is the simple black and white with which the senator views every issue, and particularly the issues of foreign policy.

This has an appeal for a great many Americans who are increasingly frustrated by the complexities of the cold war. They see in the Goldwater pledge of a "victory over communism" the prospect of a return to the comfortable, assured America of another era.

On Cuba, for example, the senator would institute a naval blockade to shut off any military aid from Soviet sources. He believes this should have been done long ago to prevent the Castro regime from getting the 50,000 tons of Czech and other bloc arms delivered during the past year. If that means war, then it means war. The fact of nuclear arms piled up on both sides of the great divide makes no difference in the need to face that eventually in the Goldwater view.

With the same black and white forthrightness he brushes aside "neutrality." In a speech at the Air War College at Montgomery, Alabama, last November he spoke blithely of the "neutrality" mask worn by African and Asian countries. "What difference does it make," he demanded, whether President Nkrumah of Ghana is a disciplined Communist as long as his public policies and intrigues accelerate Soviet ascendancy in Africa?

A short time ago all Africa was a Western preserve. Goldwater went on. Latin America was once as "safe" for the West as Nebraska was for Richard Nixon in the last election. Only American power applied directly can restore the prestige and position that the United States once enjoyed in these and other areas.

On domestic policy he is considerably to the right of the late Robert A. Taft, who was a Senate sponsor of a federal aid to education bill. Opposing federal help for schools, Goldwater advocates instead a $100 maximum federal income tax deduction as an offset to local school taxes. He believes this would help to restore spending for school purposes to local communities.

While he has been described as a radical of the right, Goldwater insists that the label "conservative" belongs to him. The radicals of the right—to the far right of Goldwater, those who would go all the way back and to whom President Eisenhower was a dangerous Communist—are trouble-some even though they are good people and in many instances the backbone of the Republican party. The Senator from Arizona speaks of them more in sorrow than in anger. Often they are among the cheer leaders in his audiences.

With it all Goldwater is courteous, considerate, quiet in manner. There is about him none of the ranting or the buffoonery of a McCarthy. But beneath the quiet exterior is the quality his followers most admire—his conviction.

Threat to Birds

Insecticides A Problem

By RICHARD FITTER

MAKE no bones about emphasizing the effect of poisonous farm chemicals on our wild life. It is far and away the most difficult and important problem that faces naturalists today.

It is no good being sentimental about the death of animals and birds. Hundreds of thousands of them, mostly young creatures in their first season, die from natural causes every year. If they did not do so, they would overrun the earth.

What is so serious about the many thousands of deaths that are expected in the next few weeks, mainly from poisonous seed-dressings, is that the victims are the breeding stock of our countryside. Already the kestrel has almost been wiped out as a breeding bird over large tracts of the arable eastern half of England, presumably as a result of catching and eating birds, mice or voles that had themselves eaten dressed corn.

Moreover, the survivors, having consumed non-lethal doses of the poison, may be rendered wholly or partially sterile. This has been demonstrated in America with pheasants and quail in captivity, and with woodcock in the wild.

There is general agreement that chemical pesticides and herbicides, often highly poisonous to creatures other than those they are intended to kill, are essential to modern agriculture, at any rate in the present climate of opinion among farmers. It may be that in 20 years' time the ecologist will have replaced the chemist as the farmer's chief mentor.

It is not, however, generally agreed that the actual poisons which are at present doing the damage, such as aldrin and dieldrin, are essential. There is reason to suppose that other equally efficient pesticides, much less lethal in their side effects, exist but are not being marketed, for reasons unconnected with their efficiency as pesticides.

The men at the top of the chemical industry appear to be genuinely anxious to do what they can to prevent needless slaughter of wild life by their products. But are they making sufficient efforts to ensure that their enlightened attitude penetrates lower down in their companies? In particular, have they made sure that their sales staff realize the full consequences of the misuse of the highly poisonous substances they are selling to farmers?

Most farmers take more notice of what the salesmen tell them than of what may be written on a label on the bag. Written warnings must, as the Ministry of Agriculture has agreed, be attached to all poisons. But if we could be sure that salesmen, in selling their products to farmers, warned them clearly of the risks to game and other wild life we should have taken a long step forward.

If the chemical manufacturers value the goodwill of those millions of their fellow citizens who care for the wild life of their country, these are the lines along which they must proceed.

French Housing Scandal

Sad City of Happiness

By WILLIAM MILLINSHIP, from Paris

A SCANDAL involving embezzlement on a grand scale and allegations of complicity in high places has overtaken "The City of Happiness," a huge housing estate in the Paris suburbs in which 1,700 families have sunk their savings.

Building stopped on the site, near the River Seine at Boulogne-Billancourt, when the private company in charge of the project was unable to pay the contractors. Only 1,000 of the planned 2,500 desirable modern flats had been completed, and a serious misuse of company funds came to light during an investigation by a commercial tribunal.

Large, irregular expense accounts, it is alleged, enabled the architect and other persons to buy themselves castles, luxurious town houses and flats. Housing estate funds were used to pay personal taxes, to provide the company with sumptuous new offices in the fashionable Place Vendôme, and to make free gifts of flats on the new estate to friends. The company also made a loan of $66,000 to finance a weekly Gaullist paper edited by a Gaullist member of parliament.

The company owes $300,000 in taxes and social security contributions, and some estimates put the total deficit at about $4,000,000. Four auditors are working their way through thousands of documents seized at the homes and offices of company directors.

Since the opening shots of the scandal, the press-led by the satirical weekly, Canard Enchaîné—has been firing in all directions, but the main target is M. Pierre Sudreau, Minister for Housing. He apparently tried to unravel the affair quietly in order to safeguard the interests of the families who had invested in the flats.

He feared that if the housing company were allowed to go bankrupt, the estate would not be finished for years. For his pains he has been criticised for not taking judicial action sooner.

The minister has threatened libel action against newspapers which insinuated that his handling of the affair was influenced by his long acquaintance with M. Paul Haag, former prefect (governor) of Paris, the chairman of the housing company. Other newspapers have brought in the name of M. Jacques Chevalier, the former mayor of Algiers.

Whatever its political repercussions, the scandal, it is thought, may put a brake on housing construction. The new apartment buildings financed by the state for rent are a mere drop in the ocean of the housing shortage. The majority of new flats are built for sale, and the capital for most of them is raised from future buyers who are treated as shareholders of the construction companies. House-hunters must begin investing in their flat up to two years in advance, usually before the foundations are laid. They buy on the strength of a sample apartment, blue-prints, and the reputation of the company and its board of directors.

Among the victims is one young couple with two children who have lived in a small, dark flat for 10 years while saving part of the capital to buy a home. They borrowed the remainder and invested in a five-room apartment on the new estate—price $20,000. They had paid about half of this when the scandal broke. Six weeks' work is needed to finish the building, but they do not know when work will start again nor how much they will have to contribute to make up the CNL deficit.

The Packack

Lunch Pail Superiority

By GREGORY CLARK

THE window of the office in which I waited for a friend overlooked a main downtown intersection, and I whiled the time away watching the five o'clock homegoing crowd boarding the buses that stopped at the corner amid the stream of heavy motor traffic. It was like a pulse, or a heart-beat. The light would change, the traffic flush away. And then, immediately, a new crowd of passengers would swiftly assemble out of the throng, to stand in readiness for the next bus. Crowd swell; crowd vanish; crowd swell. A pulse of humanity.

Then a blind man, middle-aged, with a lunch pail in his left hand and the familiar white stick in his right, stiffly approached the corner and took his stand at the curb. Around him the new crowd swiftly grew.

It consisted of girls, women, men, businessmen, and I noted, three young men, students obviously, with books in their clasps.

When the bus arrived, it did not come in to the curb as it should have. Due to cars stopped, it halted about eight feet out from the curb. I could see from the stiff tension of the blind man that this was a dilemma for him. Normally, the bus stops at the curb and he can tell by the sounds of its opening door where it is.

He stood fast. The crowd surged out and funnelled into the bus. Not a soul noticed the blind man, not a girl, woman, student, businessman. Then, to my satisfaction, another middle-aged man, a workman with a lunch pail too, glanced back, saw the white stick, walked over and took the blind man's arm and led him to the bus.

Question: are people with lunch pails not a little superior to most others?

Letters to the Editor

NORAD, and Groos

It is, of course, for your readers to judge if your newspaper is "the organ for no clique or party" when it continues to play the Conservative tune. I suggest, however, that few of them will have any difficulty in coming to the conclusion that you have a remarkably light grasp on the local political situation when you cannot even identify the Esquimalt-Saanich Liberal candidate, who happens to be David Groos not Harold Groos.

ALLAN L. COX,
Esquimalt-Saanich
Liberal Campaign Manager.

P.S. Your editorial of March 7th shows an equally poor grasp of political history. The NORAD agreement was entered into by the Tories not the Liberals, and in fact had not even been dealt with by the Liberal Cabinet.

School Income Tax

What is it going to cost me? My children are all grown up now, why should I continue paying for a dead horse? Why aren't the renters paying for the school costs? These are just some of the questions being asked by non-supporters of the school bylaw. Somewhere there lies a fair and reasonable answer to these and other similar questions.

At a recent PTA meeting the members were told that, should the bylaw be passed it would only cost the taxpayer about $10 per year, based on a $10,000 assessment. This amount would only be payable for 20 years. What happens at the end of 20 years? Does the taxpayer get a reduction in his taxes? More likely at that time and probably before, there will be further increases for rising school costs. This is natural and to be expected if our children are to be educated adequately, according to the changing times. This part is fair but the part that is unfair is, who pays for it.

Take the retired folks. They have finished raising their brood, and presumably have certainly paid their fair share of the educating costs involved.

My suggestion, workable or not, is this: Every working person should be (beginning and ending with a pre-specified age group) charged an annual amount for education, in the form of a tax. This amount should be based on their annual earnings the same as any other form of tax on income. This amount would be collectible for a pre-determined period of time, say 20 years.

R. H. BEERLING.

Praise for One

I would like to say a word of thanks to one of our public utility companies for the splendid and rapid way in which they handled the situations during our past rather inclement weather. The B.C. Electric Company is to be congratulated. Power was off in certain localities but was restored within a few hours. On the other hand our other public utility company, the B.C. Telephone Company, has given the paying public very poor or practically no service at all. They were confronted with no worse conditions or circumstances than those under which the B.C. Electric Company labored, and while power was restored within a few hours, our telephone, for one, has been out-of-order for over two days, and service, at time of writing, has not yet been restored. On "phoning the "Repair service" of the B.C. Telephone, from another "phone, I waited for eight rings (service) before the operator finally answered, and informed me, "It will be checked into," please note: "Will" not "has been", so it will probably be two or three more days before service is finally restored. And this by-the-way is the third or fourth time this has happened to our "phone in the past as many months.

K 'Down on Farm' Mending Fences Experts Believe

By K. C. THALER

LONDON (UPI) — Why is Khrushchev staying down on the farm after he's seen Paris and the other summit sites?

His prolonged absence from the Soviet capital in recent weeks yesterday caused Western diplomats to look for motives behind his lengthy tour of the Siberian farm belt.

He has appeared to be deliberately avoiding contact with the West at a time when by all the rules of international diplomacy he should be tied to his Kremlin desk assessing the new Kennedy administration in Washington.

OTHER MATTERS

On the surface, he is worried about the slump in farm production. But sources reported other matters weighing on his mind, hence the stress on internal affairs.

They said he appeared to be preparing for the Communist party congress next autumn, which should be one of the most critical party gatherings since Lenin's day.

At issue is Khrushchev's doctrine of peaceful co-existence against Red China's insistence that war with capitalism is inevitable.

PARTY PURGE

Khrushchev already has begun a purge of party officials. He appeared to be touring the interior to make sure he had the "right men" in power and that they understood the "right line."

When he is certain he has his political fence mended, then he will return to the diplomatic arena, sources predicted.

Italian Nun To Be Saint

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John XXIII yesterday presided over a consistory which voted for the canonization of an Italian nun who worked as a nurse in the First World War.

The consistory, in which cardinals present in Rome cast ballots, was one of the last steps in the canonization of Bertilla Boscardin, who died in 1922 at the age of 34.

Soccer Game Punch Costs $20, Apology

Venting his feelings on the referee of a soccer game cost a Victoria man $20—plus a volunteered apology—in Saanich police court yesterday.

Stephen Vitz, 1028 Pendergast, pleaded guilty before Magistrate William Ostler to common assault against Maurice Speller, 3839 Saanich, last March 5.

Mr. Speller told the court he had just finished refereeing a soccer game at Reynolds Park and was walking out through the crowd when he was attacked from behind. He was punched on the shoulder blade and back, and felt a thrust behind his legs.

"I am sincerely sorry, and wish to apologize to Mr. Speller," accused said through an interpreter.

"I was overheated by the game," he continued, "and by a decision made by Mr. Speller. I was carried away, and am now sorry and ashamed."

"It is commendable and proper that you should apologize," said the magistrate. "If you cannot control yourself at athletic functions you should stay away."

Also in Saanich court Gerald Singh, 331 Burnside West, was fined $50 for drinking in a public place—in a car on Douglas Street.

Six-month jail sentence was handed down in city court to Gerald Young, 27, who had pleaded guilty to "passing a forged cheque for $1,000 on the account of an elderly rest home patient."

The elderly man lived at 1739 Hollywood Crescent, where Young also lived at the time of the offence last fall.

Main Street To Masaryk

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Canadian Committee on Ethnic Unity has proposed renaming Winnipeg streets to honor ethnic groups. Suggestions are: Main Street: Masaryk; Corydon: Confucius; and Mountain: Mohammed.

Perched atop a bottle mountain in basement home of Mrs. John Tribe (centre), 4511 Pachea Place, are Royal Oak High School students Susan Kendall, 16, 5178 Old West Saanich Road, left, and Sandra Mitcham, 15, 4882 Townsend Drive, who helped collect more than 300 dozen bottles in drive to finance school's yearbook. U.S. Votes Indicate New Africa Policy

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The United States has given two dramatic pieces of evidence in 24 hours that the Kennedy administration is embarking on a new African policy.

If the signs are correct—and most UN diplomats think they are—the United States will undoubtedly win new friends.

But it may also alienate some old ones.

It is not yet clear just how far-reaching the changes are, but the new U.S. position indicates a break with the big Western allies on some colonial issues.

The first major step came Wednesday night in the Security Council when chief U.S. delegate Adlai Stevenson lined up with the Soviet Union and three Afro-Asian delegations on a resolution calling for reforms in Portuguese Angola.

In the past, the United States had almost always voted with its NATO allies on colonial issues. On this question, however, the United States not only split with Britain and France but it sharply challenged Portugal's attitude of non-co-operation.

Thursday morning the United States once more found itself at odds with Britain, France, Portugal and Belgium by voting for a resolution censuring South Africa for its attitude on the territory of Southwest Africa, a former League of Nations mandate.

These moves were in sharp contrast with the U.S. abstention last fall on a resolution calling for an end of colonialism.

The U.S. votes were hailed by Asian and African diplomats as important steps toward better relations with their countries, but privately some Western delegates expressed concern.

Medical Care

Well-to-Do Indians Won't Pay

OTTAWA (CP) — The problem of trying to get well-to-do Indians to pay for government medical services which other Indians get free was placed Thursday before the joint Commons-Senate committee on Indian affairs.

Dr. P. E. Moore, director of the health department's Indian health services, said his branch is trying to educate Indians to accept some responsibilities.

But he gave the example of one Indian band in Alberta, with 21 producing oil wells on its reservation, which "absolutely refuses to pay one nickel toward their medical care."

The committee had heard a brief from the Canadian Medical Association, strongly criticizing the low schedules of fees allowed by the government to doctors providing medical services to Indians under contract.

Yacht Club Plots Course For Big, Colorful Season

Royal Victoria Yacht Club is all hustle and bustle these days as planning goes ahead for the biggest and most colorful yachting season in its history.

Commodore Dr. L. E. Horne and regatta chairman Doug Adams are holding almost nightly meetings as they plan for the Pacific International Yachting Association regatta.

Up to 200 boats of all classes, from the 67-foot Maritima to dinghies, will be here for the all-important regatta.

They will come from Portland Yacht Club, Corinthian Yacht Club, Seattle Yacht Club, Tacoma Yacht Club, Queen's City Yacht Club, Bellingham Yacht Club, Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, West Vancouver Yacht Club, Maple Bay Yacht Club, Royal Canadian Navy Sailing Association and, of course, Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

The meet will open at a rendezvous in the San Juan Islands, where there will be a barbecue and beach party, followed by long-distance races to Cadboro Bay the next day.

The PIYA regatta is a once-in-five years event for the Victoria club and will be the highlight of the season as billowy sails fill Cadboro Bay for a full week.

But it is only the biggest of several major events for the Victoria club this season.

SWIFTSURE
The annual two-day Swiftsure Race has been scheduled for a May 27 start from Victoria. Local yachts likely to compete include A. B. Sander's EIO, which will be one of the smallest in the race.

RENDZVOUS
The club regatta, in which all boats will take part, has been scheduled for Aug. 5 and 6, and the last major event of the season will be the Labor Day regatta at Maple Bay.

Launching day at Royal Victoria Yacht Club will be April 15 and opening day, when about 150 sail and power boats are expected to take part in a sail-past, will be May 6.

New boats will be added to the club fleet.

Victoria waters will be alive with sleek beauties like these as Royal Victoria Yacht Club heads into the busiest and most colorful season in its history.

and will include Ned Ashe, veteran Swiftsure racer, as a crew member, and Cmdr. J. C. Reid's 35-foot Lion class English sloop JJ, which he had brought out from New York last fall.

This year Victoria has plans to turn the Swiftsure event into a week of celebrations.

CLUB EVENTS

The club regatta, in which all boats will take part, has been scheduled for Aug. 5 and 6, and the last major event of the season will be the Labor Day regatta at Maple Bay.

Launching day at Royal Victoria Yacht Club will be April 15 and opening day, when about 150 sail and power boats are expected to take part in a sail-past, will be May 6.

New boats will be added to the club fleet.

LIGHT YACHTS

Two 30-foot double-ended light displacement yachts, designed by club member Dana Ramsay, have been launched at Canoe Cove—the Uvula for Bud and Peggy Trythall and the Maxymum for Max Young.

Two big power boats, not yet launched, are J. Simpson's 44-footer Caravelle, which will be launched soon at Canoe Cove, and Harold Elworthy's 47-footer, Lady Diane, which will be ready for the season.

NEW OWNERS

Some boats have changed hands. A. R. Alexander has bought Logan Mayhew's 30-foot Forays and Dr. W. D. Marshall has just bought the 42-foot power cruiser Scamp.

This spring 200 feet more wharfage will be added to club floats.

About 14 RVYC frontbiters will compete at the West Vancouver Yacht Club this weekend, defending the inter-club honors they won two weeks ago.

During the season there will be long-distance racing almost every weekend, and club races in Cadboro Bay on Wednesdays.

April 9 is the date of the Gulf of Georgia race of the International Power Boat Association. Club members planning to participate include Jack Knowland in Windy Lou III, Dr. W. D. Marshall in Scamp, Bill Menzies in Dalopa and Art Luney in Navajo.

AROUND ISLAND

The International Power Boat Association also plans a month-long combined vacation cruise and predicted-log ocean race around Vancouver Island from July 15 and 16 to Aug. 12 and 13. Rendezvous will be at Pender Harbor on July 17 and the race will finish at Victoria Aug. 10, with a wind-up banquet at Victoria Yacht Club Aug. 11 and two days left to cruise to home ports.

Find Out About Radiation Genetic Society Proposes

MONTREAL (CP)—Scientists must be learned about the effects of radiation, the Genetics Society of Canada said Thursday in passing a resolution urging a step-up of basic research into the subject.

The society said that peaceful use of atomic energy may be limited by lack of knowledge of the effect radiation has on man.

"We are reasonably sure small doses of radiation have some effect, but present estimates are exceedingly inaccurate," said Dr. Howard Newcombe, chairman of the committee that drew up the resolution.

U.S. Approves Columbia Pact

Hopes B.C. Will Iron Out Troubles

Tummy turmoil on eat-and-run days?

Probably—but you don't have to suffer heartburn or acid indigestion! Not when you keep TUMS handy. Just eat one or two of these mild, minty tablets—no water or glass needed—and get fast relief from stomach discomfort. No after-taste with TUMS. Take TUMS any time, any place! Carry a roll in your purse or pocket. And TUMS cost so little.

for the tummy

WASHINGTON (CP)—The United States Senate Thursday swiftly approved the Columbia River power treaty with Canada and expressed the hope that Canada may soon iron out its own internal troubles over the project.

Senator Henry Dworshak, Idaho Republican, brought the chamber's attention to a newspaper report which suggested that because of feuding between the Canadian and British Columbia governments, the huge international power scheme may be in danger of long delay or collapse.

"I certainly hope," said Dworshak, "that it will be possible to overcome some of the objections currently causing some delay in British Columbia's consideration of the treaty."

He said Canadians at times have been critical of the United States because it seemed unwilling to co-operate "as it should" in stimulating the Canadian economy "in a business sense."

The treaty would demonstrate in an effective manner how the two countries could co-operate for their mutual welfare and security, he said.

Senator Wallace Bennett, Utah Republican, voiced the lone opposing vote. Later Bennett told reporters he did so because the power project threatens the Pacific northwest coal market for some mines in his state.

He said he realized all along that he had no chance of defeating the measure but he had been asked by the coal companies to express opposition and he was merely "responding" to that request.

Other senators lauded the treaty, which provides for a 50-50 sharing of electricity produced in the U.S. from three new dams to be built in British Columbia.

Senator John Sparkman, Alabama Democrat who steered the measure through a swift half-hour debate, described the treaty as a great step forward in co-operation between the two countries.

Green Takes Dig At B.C. Premier

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green ended a round of Commons questioning about the Columbia River yesterday with a dig at Premier Bennett of British Columbia.

"You've got as good an idea as I have whether it is possible to reach agreement with the B.C. premier on anything," Mr. Green told H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West).

Mr. Herridge and Liberal Leader Pearson had asked when the Canada-United States treaty, covering a $458,000,000 storage and transmission system in B.C., could be expected to come before Parliament.

Mr. Green said Mr. Pearson knows very well what the situation is—agreement still has to be reached between B.C. and the federal government before Parliament can tackle the treaty for ratification.

Mr. Herridge asked whether Mr. Green is confident that the federal-provincial agreement—on financing and jurisdiction of control—can be reached before the session concludes this summer.

Who knows, Mr. Green said in effect.

Next step is a meeting be-

Fleming Loser in 'Game of Gimmicks' So Loophole Closed, Commons Told

OTTAWA (CP)—Finance Minister Fleming has borrowed in a most extravagant way and now seeks to limit competition from provinces and municipalities in this field, Liberal finance critic William Bendickson said Thursday.

"They were beating him in the game of gimmicks," so Mr. Fleming decided to close a loophole, the MP for Kenora-Rainy River said in the Commons.

Mr. Bendickson referred to action taken in the Dec. 20 budget to stop purchasers of certain bonds from evading the income tax charged on all bond interest.

Mr. Fleming complained then that interest rates were kept low to provide one incentive in the shape of low income tax for the buyer. Another incentive to purchasing the bonds was a big discount rate, which evaded tax and gave a substantial return to the bond holder.

Pee Wees Lose To Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP)—Nanaimo defeated Victoria 3-2 to win the Vancouver Pee Wee Minor Hockey championship here Tuesday night.
 Last week the clubs fought to a 4-4 tie in the first game of the two-game total-point series.
 Nanaimo now meets Capilano, mainland winners, here next week for the Pacific Coast championship.

Bench Strength Handy

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—Charlie Sutherland, the Harrison County basketball coach, is known as a quick thinker.

He charged out on the floor to protest a decision. "Listen," he roared, "for each step you take getting back to that bench, I'll give you one technical foul."

Whereupon Sutherland whistled for two of his substitutes and had them carry him off the floor.

Those Sleepless Nights Are Over for Boom Boom Now

MONTREAL.—"Maybe now I can get some sleep."

A beaming Bernie Geoffrion held court in Montreal Canadiens' dressing room last night after scoring his 50th goal of the season, and told of the pressure surrounding a player as he goes after a National Hockey League record.

"I just couldn't sleep last night. The pressure was just too terrific," the 30-year-old winger said.

"The guys kept telling me tonight that I could do it, then I missed several good chances and I said to myself, 'That's it for tonight.' Then Bellevue and Tremblay set me up and that was it."

"I'm very glad. Now I'll be able to sleep tonight."

Geoffrion had six shots at Toronto goalie Cesare Maniago as he attempted to tie Maurice Richard's long-standing record. He missed the empty net once, and scored on his final shot of the night.

Even coach Toe Blake couldn't put a damper on celebrations as he pointed out that Geoffrion still has to win one game to be sure of the league title. The way Canadiens are moving now, nobody in Montreal seriously doubts that they will win either against Chicago or Detroit.

"We played better than they did in the third period and that was it," Blake said in paying tribute to his club. "It was a real team effort, and Bernie's goal was the icing on the cake."

It was much quieter in the Toronto dressing room, where coach Punch Imlach moaned that "it just wasn't in the books for us."

But some of the old Imlach defiance flared up again when he told reporters: "Don't talk to me about second place. We're still in there, and you never can tell."

Leafs do have slightly the better of the schedule, playing Boston and New York in their last two games.

Imlach closed with words of praise for rookie Maniago, who he said played a great game.

"He's going to be a great one," Imlach said. "Make no mistake about that."

Geoffrion Scores Forum Goes Wild

MONTREAL—Bernie "Boom-Boom" Geoffrion tied hockey's most famous record here last night, scoring his 50th goal of the season as Montreal Canadiens bombed Toronto Maple Leafs, 5-2, to all but clinch their fourth straight National Hockey League championship.

The Boomer's history-making shot tied the 16-year-old season goal-scoring record set in 1944-45 by Montreal's Maurice "Rocket" Richard, and capped a fantastic late-season rush that has seen Geoffrion do the seemingly-impossible and pass Toronto's Frank Mahovlich in the dash for the record.

Twenty games ago Mahovlich had 40 goals and Geoffrion only 27. But in those 20 games Geoffrion has scored 23 times, 18 in the last 13 games, while the slumping Mahovlich, without injured Red Kelly to make the plays for him in the past two weeks, has managed only seven.

Geoffrion's goal didn't make much difference in the outcome last night. Canadiens had already sewn it up with three goals in the third period. But when he put the puck past Cesare Maniago at 14:15, a record crowd of 15,011 at Montreal Forum went slightly mad.

Hundreds of rubbers, programs, popcorn bags and other debris showered the ice as the overjoyed Geoffrion threw himself into the arms of centre Jean Beliveau and both tumbled to the ice.

Fittingly enough it was a pass from Beliveau that set up the goal. The big centre, having perhaps his greatest season, has been one of the major factors in Geoffrion's surge, and his two assists last night gave him the all-time NHL assist record of 58. The old mark of 56 was set by Toronto's Bert Olmstead when he was playing on a line with Geoffrion and Beliveau for Montreal.

Geoffrion has two games left to try and break the record, which was set in 50 games by Richard and equaled in 62 by the Boomer. He also had an assist last night and needs only two points to break the NHL record of 96 held by teammate Dick Moore.

Leafs used rookie Maniago in goal in place of the injured Johnny Bower, and he finished with 31 saves in a fine effort. But in the third period the roof fell in on the 22-year-old from Trail.

Billy Hicke, Henri Richard, Ralph Backstrom and Geoffrion beat him in a span of less than 10 minutes beginning at 4:57. Eddie Shack got Toronto's only goal of the period to make it 3-2 at that time.

TIED IT UP

The teams played through a scoreless first period. Guy Gendron gave Canadiens the lead in the second, but rookie Dave Keen tied it with his 20th goal of the season a minute later.

Now three points ahead of the Leafs with two games left for each club, Canadiens can clinch their fourth straight league crown with one more win or a Toronto loss Chicago visits Montreal Saturday night.

Inclement weather up north cut theatre-television receipts but the films may moderate this loss, for it was an exciting mishmash with each man on the floor twice. Even Cus D'Amato, who once held sway over Patterson's breathing, has lost control of his fighter.

If anybody won, it may have been the boy promoters of Feature Sports Inc., whose late price-cutting brought in a bigger crowd than anybody anticipated, to crush behind posts or stand up in front of those $100 seats. Feature Sports also got Patterson's pledge to make his next title defence for them, a shattering defeat for D'Amato.

Though there is no longer any attempt to conceal the widening breach between champion and manager, it is a curious fact that the first time Floyd was in trouble, the one he turned to was the man who had been his Svengali since amateur days. This was in the first round when Johnson had crossed a right over Patterson's jab and dropped the champion for the first time.

Floyd got back on his feet and was waiting out the mandatory eight-count. Probably from old habit, he turned to the manager crouching outside his corner. As their eyes met, Floyd's lips drew into a thin line of self-reproach, a deprecating expression, half apology and half disgust, that clearly said: "How about that, boss? Can you beat it?"

There was little or no rapport between the partners the next day, however. When Patterson met with the press, D'Amato remained out in the lobby where he didn't have to listen when the champion said his next bout would be promoted by Feature Sports, whom D'Amato despises, probably in New York, where D'Amato is unlicensed, between early June and late September.

No Comment on Fugazy

Cus didn't have to hear Floyd say he had grown to like Roy Cohn, of F.S.I., and liked the firm's new executive director, Thomas Bolan, even better. Patterson declined to express his sentiments regarding the retiring president, Bill Fugazy.

Later Cus topped his own enviable records for high-speed self-deception and the running broad equivocation by explaining that it was only Cohn and Fugazy whom he had vowed to cast into outer darkness, not the faceless F.S.I. He blinks easily to the fact that Cohn and Fugazy, retiring from active management of the firm, remain the ruling partners.

Even as Patterson told the press that D'Amato no longer was making the decisions but merely taking the manager's cut, his speech revealed how habit-forming Cus can be. Floyd talked pure D'Amato, a highly specialized tongue, when he said Sonny Liston could get a title shot only by divesting himself of evil companions. Asked to identify those sinister ones, he said solemnly: "I don't want to get bumped off. You name 'em."

Like manager, like fighter. It can be said here, at what ever desperate risk of getting bumped off, that Liston will be expected to show that Blinky Palermo owns no piece of him, that Jim Norris exercises no remote control. Look for Great Britain's Henry Cooper, not Liston, to get the next chance.

One final comment: There's a great fuss around here over the Miami Beach commission's refusal to waive the mandatory eight-count a policy in most other places. The theory is that Johnson might have won by a knockout in the first round if Patterson hadn't been given eight seconds' rest after each knockdown.

This makes sense only if you believe Patterson was bereft of his wits and wouldn't have had the presence of mind to stay down and rest. With or without the mandatory eight-count he was entitled to nine seconds on the floor.

Magic 50 Wasn't Fancy, But Effective

It wasn't a fancy goal but one of the more historic markers of the NHL was counted by Montreal's Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion in Montreal last night. Here Geoffrion (5), with Toronto's Bert Olmstead draped over him, fires his 50th goal of season past Cesare Maniago and other unidentified Toronto defenders. Goal tied record set by Maurice Richard in 1944-45 season. —(CP Wirephoto.)

VIEWSON SPORT

By Red Smith

MIAMI BEACH—Whenever the bell rang to start a round, Miss Birgit Lundgren of Goteborg, Geneva, and intermediate spots on Ingemar Johansson's timetable, stuffed dainty finger tips into shell pink ears, dropped her head until her light-brown hair was a curtain before her face, and held that maidenly pose without looking up for three full minutes.

At her side, Johansson's sister Eva watched the floundering bragger in the ring, emitting tiny incoherent cries of excitement, apprehension, distress. Her brother Rolf said things in Swedish, in a reassuring tone at first but then with a growing note of concern.

In the sixth round when the challenger realized he had been counted out, he turned toward his corner and ring-siders there saw tears stream down his bruised face. Eva sobbed uncontrollably. Birgit departed with the family, eyes downcast, deadpanned.

Floyd Patterson, the winner and still champion, kissed the loser's cheek and quit the ring in deep dejection, ashamed of a crudely clownish exhibition that he recognized as unworthy of an amateur.

Just about that time, Miami Beach's heroic gendarmes began beating up photographers and reporters assigned to cover the dressing rooms. In an excess of Southern chivalry, one storm trooper with a steel helmet addressed a middle-aged reporter waiting patiently outside Johansson's boudoir: "You move, or I'll split your head open with this hat."

It was a night to remember, a night when almost everybody lost. Patterson saved his title but lost professional standing with the most sloppily inept performance of his career. Johansson, though history may never describe him as the Grand Old Man of the Sweet Science, did make a creditable stand but lost the fight.

Even Cus Lost Control

Inclement weather up north cut theatre-television receipts but the films may moderate this loss, for it was an exciting mishmash with each man on the floor twice. Even Cus D'Amato, who once held sway over Patterson's breathing, has lost control of his fighter.

If anybody won, it may have been the boy promoters of Feature Sports Inc., whose late price-cutting brought in a bigger crowd than anybody anticipated, to crush behind posts or stand up in front of those $100 seats. Feature Sports also got Patterson's pledge to make his next title defence for them, a shattering defeat for D'Amato.

Though there is no longer any attempt to conceal the widening breach between champion and manager, it is a curious fact that the first time Floyd was in trouble, the one he turned to was the man who had been his Svengali since amateur days. This was in the first round when Johnson had crossed a right over Patterson's jab and dropped the champion for the first time.

Floyd got back on his feet and was waiting out the mandatory eight-count. Probably from old habit, he turned to the manager crouching outside his corner. As their eyes met, Floyd's lips drew into a thin line of self-reproach, a deprecating expression, half apology and half disgust, that clearly said: "How about that, boss? Can you beat it?"

There was little or no rapport between the partners the next day, however. When Patterson met with the press, D'Amato remained out in the lobby where he didn't have to listen when the champion said his next bout would be promoted by Feature Sports, whom D'Amato despises, probably in New York, where D'Amato is unlicensed, between early June and late September.

Early-Season Races To Decide UBC Trip

VANCOUVER (CP)—Whether or not the University of British Columbia-Vancouver Rowing Club eight participates in the Henley Regatta in England next July will be decided by its early season performance in races against United States crews.

A spokesman said here Wednesday night the crew will meet Oregon, then Washington eights in late April and will compete in the Pacific Coast intercollegiate championships on Lake Washington in early May.

"If the boys show enough, we'll try to arrange the trip to England," the spokesman said. "We don't actually have an invitation yet, but it has been indicated to us the UBC VCR eight will be welcomed at Henley."

The trip to Henley would cost about $25,000 and VRC officials said it was hoped that if the crew was sent it could be raised in a short whirlwind campaign.

The crew, under coach Frank Read, won a silver medal at last summer's Olympics in Rome, finishing second to Germany. Laurie West, stroke of the 1956 Olympic silver medalists, has taken over as coach.

The 1961 crew has already started training, rowing in the morning before classes and doing calisthenics at night.

Unknown Schools Scramble Tourney

VANCOUVER — Two little schools not rated a ghost of a chance scammed into the semi-finals of the annual B.C.

First tiny Semiahoo of White Rock, which had to win a special pre-tourney elimination to even qualify for the competition, beat out powerful Lord Byng of Vancouver, 32-27. Then Clearbrook, Menzies High trounced Lester Pearson of New Westminster, 47-33 to complete one of the most startling days' play in the 16-year history of the tournament.

Only twice in those 16 years has a team outside the lower mainland gone on to win. Mission, led by John Kootenoff, did it in 1954 and Victoria High turned the trick in 1959.

Semis Tonight

Tonight the two giant-killers meet in one semi-final, while top-seeded Magee takes on Abbotsford in the other. Magee beat Delbrook of North Vancouver, 48-29, and Abbotsford beat Prince Rupert Rainmakers, 47-33.

Three of Vancouver Island's four entries posted victories in the consolation round. Oak Bay's Island champions, getting 43 points from John Fraser, downed King Edward, 57-34; Victoria High beat Creston, 49-40, and Alberni Crestains won from Summerland, 49-40, as Terry Richmond scored 19 points. Tofino, the other Island entry, lost, 49-43, to Queen Elizabeth.

Victoria plays Alberni and Oak Bay plays Queen Elizabeth today.

Trail, B.C. (CP)—A six-ender in the 11th end broke up a tight game between Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia here Thursday and sent Burley Townsend's Regina rink on its way to a seventh straight victory in the Royal Canadian Legion curling championship.

Townsend, only unbeaten rink in the round-robin final, upped his mark to 7-0 with an 11-5 win over Bob Gillingham of Brigidwater, N.S.

Tom Dickson's Cloverdale, B.C., rink took over sole possession of second place with a 6-1 record, the result of a come-from-behind 12-11 squeaker over Manitoba, with whom they had been previously tied.

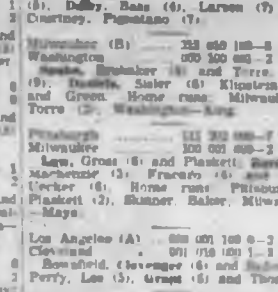

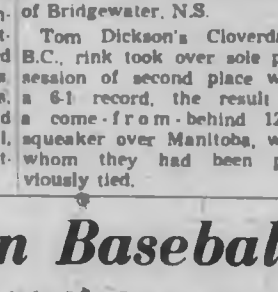

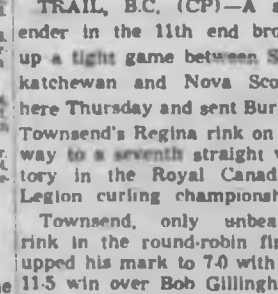

Trail Wins

NANAIMO—Trail won the B.C. juvenile hockey championship here last night, beating Nanaimo, 5-1, in the third game of a best-of-three series.

Mel Unger, with two goals, Gary Fero, Jack McCann and Ron Rishagen scored for Trail, while Gary Hill averted a shut-out for Nanaimo.

Burnley Bushed; Spurs on Holiday

LONDON (CP)—A tired Burnley team will be meeting fresh and vigorous opposition in Saturday's Football Association cup semi-final.

While the Lancastrians were off in Germany being knocked out of the European cup by Hamburg Wednesday, their semi-final opponents, Tottenham Hotspur, enjoyed a week's holiday on the Welsh coast.

This must shorten the odds on Tottenham, the only southern side left in the competition, taking a step further towards completing a double.

Not since 1897 has a team won the cup and the league championship in the same season. Mighty Spurs, with the league title practically sewn up, have only to beat Burnley to win a place in the cup final.

In the other semi-final Sheffield United, sole survivor from the second division, meets Leicester City.

This could be anyone's match. This year Sheffield has been the scourge of first division teams, knocking Everton, Blackburn and Newcastle out of the competition.

Leicester's chances were dimmed by the news that Welsh international centre-forward Ken Leek is doubtful for Saturday's game because of a knee injury. Sheffield will be at full strength.

Semi-final ties are played on neutral grounds. The Burnley-Tottenham clash is at Villa Park, Birmingham, and the Sheffield-Leicester match at Elland Road, Leeds.

Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association has tentatively set its 10-week ladder derby for May 20 to July 13, with fishoff of the top 200 qualifiers scheduled for Aug. 13.

This year the ladder will be the top 200 heaviest fish over the entire 10-week period, instead of weekly ladders of 25 runs each.

Solarium Derby has been tentatively set for July 23, the Junior Derby for Aug. 27 and the Cerebral Palsy Coho Derby for Sept. 30 and Oct. 1.

Now you Saanich Inlet anglers can go ahead and plan your summer vacations to fit in with derby dates.

Word that a report to the federal government has recommended a $5 saltwater fishing licence has caused considerable concern in Victoria fishing circles, although upland at Campbell River this measure has won support, provided the money is used for salmon conservation.

Tuesday at 8 p.m. at the British Public Schools Club in Victoria an extraordinary meeting of delegates from the VSIAA, Saanich Inlet Boatman's Association, Esquimalt Anglers' Navy Anglers', Chinook Club and representatives of the Pacific Trollers' Association will sit down to thrash out views on the saltwater licensing proposals.

The fish and game branch needs more conservation officers (game wardens to you) and will hold interviews in Nanaimo, May 25; Vancouver, May 26; Cranbrook, May 28; Nelson, May 31; Kamloops, June 2 and Prince George, June 5. Application forms may be obtained from the Director, Fish and Game Branch, Department of Recreation and Conservation, 567 Burrard Street, Vancouver 1, B.C., and must be received no later than April 20.

Victoria Fish and Game Club protects its Norm Young Inter-Island trap shooting trophy at the Goldstream club grounds Sunday. Challenging teams will come from Campbell River, Courtenay, Port Alberni, Duncan, Nanaimo, Victoria Gun Club, and Keating Gun Club. A chicken shoot will follow.

That Salmon River in the Sayward area is still producing those big... big... big steelhead. At the start of the season Rob Davidson got a 24 pounder. Last weekend Harry Dyer and Dick Harding both captured 23 1/2-pounders out of the Salmon.

Biologist Dave Hurn tells us the Nanaimo River has been the hottest he has seen it in five years, but you have to know when and how to fish it.

Steelheading can be profitable now in any Island river, providing conditions are right on the particular day you fish it. Puntledge River is giving up some cutthroat as well as steelies, as are the Big Qualicum, Little Qualicum and Englishman Rivers.

Wolfe Lake and Comox Lake in the Courtenay area are good for cutthroat now and Taylor Arm at the top end of Spruce Lake is giving up some good cutthroat.

Lower reaches of the Chemainus and behind Hick's Farm at Westholme have been producing steelies and the Koksilah is still hot and cold.

Of special interest to Victorians is that a few rainbows are being caught in Durrance Lake.

First button fish of the year came out of Saanich Inlet Saturday—a 20 1/2-pounder caught by Harry Talbot on Strip Teaser. He also landed 15, 13 and 12-pounders in Tod Inlet. Fishing with him, Gerry Martin got a 15-pounder on a Lucky Louie plug. Bob Redgrave got a 13-pounder and just before dark on Wednesday Mervyn Campbell got a 16-pounder at Tod Inlet on Minnow-Teaser, 100 feet of line and planer.

Blues and jacksprings appear to be ganging up in Finlayson Arm waters and there is the odd heavyweight around to make it interesting. Ida and Henry Rollin took their limit of blues behind Goldstream Island on bucktails and Art Griffith and J. Painter got 15 blues on green and white and blue and white bucktails.

With midday low tides this weekend, it is a good time to combine bluebacking with crabbing in Finlayson Arm.

Soccer Finals On Tap

Three lower Island finals are scheduled this weekend in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Soccer Association.

Rugby Final Saturday

Oak Bay Wanderers go after another city senior rugby championship tomorrow, meeting Victoria University at 2:30 at Macdonald Park in a sudden-death final for the Barnard Cup.

While Wanderers are toiling in defence of the first division title, Royal Roads and HMCS Venture will be fighting it out at Royal Roads for the second-division crown. That one starts at 2 p.m.

In junior division semi-finals, Sea Cadets play Oak Bay Whites at Macdonald Park and Reds meet PPCLI at Windsor. Both games start at 2 p.m.

Portland's Power Packaged In One High-Scoring Unit

Calgary fans can talk all they want about the great Jankowski-Johnson-Leopold line, but in Portland the Buckaroos fans are raving about a power line of their own.

Gordie Fashoway, Art Jones and Arnie Schmutz have been perhaps the biggest force in Portland's fight to the top bracket of the Western Hockey League, and Victoria Cougars have to find a way to throw a short-circuit into that power line tonight.

The teams meet at 8:30 tonight at Memorial Arena, and as Cougar coach George Agar puts it, "It's a crucial one for both of us." A Cougar win would mean two more precious points in the playoff fight with Edmonton Flyers, while a win for Portland would put the Bucks back into a first-place tie with Calgary Stampede.

It figures to be a busy evening for Marcel Pelletier, especially when the big line is on the ice against him, for Jones, Fashoway and Schmutz have scored 91 of Portland's 213 goals this season. Fash has 38, five in the last two games; Schmutz has 24, and Jones 32.

Pelletier of course will have a special reason for being tough tonight. Opposing him will be Don Head, and if the big Portland rookie should shut out the Cougars he will tie Pelletier's WHL record of eight shutouts in a season.

Cougars will have to go without rookie winger Bert Fizzell, who has a severe case of boils and may miss as many as three games.

But for the moment Cougars are out to catch that sixth playoff spot. A win tonight would be a giant step in that direction, especially if Vancouver Canucks co-operate and knock off the Flyers at Edmonton.

With a six-point lead and two games in hand, Agar could start breathing a little easier.

Whole Broadway Show Presented on Pay TV

TORONTO (UPI)—An entire Broadway production flashed on television screens last night for the first time as "The Consul" opened a one-week run on Telemeter pay television.

Telemeter, which opened North America's first pay-as-you-see TV last year, built five sets for its theatre-in-the-home production of Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera. The closed-circuit TV debut heralds a series of similar theatrical successes to be screened.

Telemeter said a rough spot check showed first-night viewing of "The Consul" was slack.

Diet, Vitamin Study Set

VANCOUVER (CP)—Representatives of 1,100 British Columbia pharmacists will study the increasing sale of vitamin pills and food substitutes to see if it constitutes a threat to public safety.

Members expressed concern with sale of: Multi-vitamin preparations now being sold increasingly by mail-order houses and door-to-door salesmen.

The council of the B.C. Pharmaceutical Association decided at its annual meeting to study the effect of mass distribution methods on public health and discuss possible controls with federal and provincial health authorities.

A minimum - colony, vitamin-fortified food substitutes now sold in grocery stores and delivered to homes.

A council spokesman said the association might ask that distribution of these products be restricted to drug stores, but not on a prescription basis.

Runway Extension

Big Future Seen For Aviation Firm

Word that the federal government has decided to extend Patricia Bay Airport runways led to speculation here yesterday that Fairway Aviation's local branch is likely to become a major aircraft overhaul, service and modification centre.

Mayor Percy Scourrah, elated yesterday that the city's three years of agitation for expanded airport facilities is beginning to pay off, said Fairway Aviation could become a major industry in the area if runways are lengthened to accommodate larger aircraft.

NEW BUSINESS

He said the company has been pursuing an aggressive policy in winning new business but has been restricted in its scope because large commercial airlines could not be handled on the airport's 3,500-foot main runway.

He also said the longer runways would greatly facilitate the handling of increased traffic during Century 21 celebrations next year.

SPOKESMAN AGREES

A spokesman for Fairway Aircraft yesterday agreed with the mayor's remarks. He said the company has been successful in getting overhauls and service contracts from several commercial U.S. air carriers, but have only been able to tender on medium-size aircraft.

He said the longer runways will also enable the company to seek work on jet interceptors.

MORE THAN 40

The company, which opened its Patricia Bay facilities five years ago, currently employs more than 40 persons and occupies two large hangars at the airport.

The spokesman said the firm has already had a measure of success in attracting several overhaul contracts for Alaskan commercial aircraft which otherwise would have to fly to California.

Pattern Set For Future Penal Plan

Fourteen penitentiary inmates, some serving sentences up to 10 years, had a 3½-hour taste of freedom last night while attending a graduation banquet in Victoria of a public speaking course held at William Head.

It marked the first time in the history of the Canadian penal system that inmates were allowed outside prison walls in civilian clothes to attend such a social function.

CURIOUS GLANCES

Half a dozen shopkeepers watched from Post Street stores as the inmates' bus pulled up in front of the Pacific Club. The inmates themselves cast curious glances at pedestrians.

Inside the Pacific Club, however, it was impossible to separate them from guests until they were introduced as inmates.

Tragic stories unfolded as the men told how they had ruined their own lives and were now fighting hard and successfully in a handicapped battle to regain a place in society.

Mayor Percy Scourrah urged the men not to lose heart if they find it difficult to find jobs when they return to civilian life.

STOP WORRYING

"If you practice what you have learned, it's going to be a great deal of value to your future life... practice this course, stop worrying and start living," he said.

B.C. Penitentiary warden T. W. Hall said the occasion was "a pattern being set for our future penal program." It was difficult to pick out the inmates... "It's a matter of mind, that's all. We're all members of society," he said.

SUCCESS STORIES

Typical of the success stories heard at the banquet was that of Walter, a former sales manager for a Vancouver importing firm—convicted of stealing $3,000 worth of goods from his company—who was informed by his former boss at the banquet a job will be waiting when he gets out of prison later this year.

"Just as I was reaching out for the top rung in the ladder of success, I fell right into the gutter," he said. The last time he saw his employer, now sitting before him, was in a courtroom more than a year ago.

ANOTHER CHANCE

His employer told a reporter he is willing to take another chance on Walter. "After all, the government must know what they're doing, and I think the people should back them up," he said.

A man named Marcel, who has been in prison since 1958 on his second conviction for safe-cracking, said his mother and 15-year-old son think he's serving in the U.S. Army. "I had a Grade 6 education and no trade at all. Now I have the equivalent of at least Grade 12, and I've studied auto mechanics, masonry, industrial first aid and architectural drafting."

"Now I'm equipped to face the facts. I'm not coming back; this is the end." He said he hopes to return home, become a contractor and patch up his broken life.

City Crime Lab Far Too Costly Expert Thinks

Crime laboratories are a luxury which few local police forces can afford to set up, staff and operate, the former boss of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said here yesterday.

L. H. Nicholson, retired commissioner of the RCMP, said forces considering such a move would "be wise to look at the problem in a regional way."

VERY EXPENSIVE

"It's a very expensive operation—too expensive for most individual forces or even small groups of forces," he said. "And then there is the big problem in getting the type of people you need for staff."

At the same time, Mr. Nicholson called for absorption or merging of "hundreds" of tiny, inefficient police forces across Canada.

Victoria Police Chief John Blackstock recently called for a crime laboratory to serve the Victoria area.

MAIN COMPLAINT

Main complaint of local forces is that evidence requiring laboratory inspection must go all the way to the Regina facilities of the RCMP, and time is consumed when laboratory workers are summoned to testify on findings at trials here.

"I think regional efforts would work out best," Mr. Nicholson said. "Maybe Victoria would be the place. Maybe it should be Vancouver. But it can't be done alone, in my opinion."

ON BUSINESS

Mr. Nicholson, who resigned from the force in 1959 over the government's refusal to reinforce RCMP detachments in then-strike-disordered Newfoundland, is in Victoria on business far removed from law enforcement.

As Deputy Chief Scout for Canada and chief commissioner of the St. John Ambulance Brigade he is covering one day I too may find myself unemployed. Very true, sir, but spare the day when I withhold news on those grounds.

There's a lot of speculation going about that the provincial government may enter the field of retail sale of gasoline.

There's certainly not enough information available for me to decide whether there's any truth to the speculation but it does lead to some intriguing possibilities.

Like: "Buy your gas at the green and white pump."

The rumors have it that the government would sell its B.C.-produced gas—which would not have the new three cents a gallon tax increase on it—to bolster sagging revenues.

Recreation Debate A Hit with MLAs

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoor Editor

Party lines were forgotten yesterday as questions, advice and suggestions poured from every side of the Legislature when Recreation Minister Earle Westwood guided his department estimates through the house.

The recreational estimates will continue today.

Here are some of the highlights from the government policy and members' suggestions as they were discussed in the House yesterday:

'Jeep Road'

Cowichan River anglers are not likely to get an angler's trail along the south bank of the river, but they may get a jeep road, because owners of private riverfront property would go for a government-built jeep road, where they are not interested in a trail.

Hunters and fishermen are using a wildlife resource which belongs to all the people of British Columbia and they should expect to contribute to social services and human needs, just as any other resource-user does.

If Victoria and outside municipalities are not interested in helping the Maritime Museum of British Columbia, now operated by the navy at Signal Hill, Vancouver wants it.

'Moonlighters'

The provincial government should take steps to get the federal government to do something about the moonlighting commercial fishermen who go out in 14-foot rowboats, with $1 licences and deep lines and take all the fish they like, while fishing alongside a sport fisherman with a light rod.

The Municipal Act should be changed to allow municipalities and rural areas to co-operate in park development in municipal fringe areas that will benefit everyone in an area.

Nanaimo should not be allowed to sell its old golf course for subdivision homes, when provincial taxpayers' money is going to be used to develop Newcastle Island as a holiday paradise. If any place can use a second golf course, now or in the future, it is Nanaimo.

The government should get the road to Tofino in better shape because recent publicity in the recreation department publication, Beautiful B.C., is going to bring an influx of holidaymakers who may carry back bad publicity about the road conditions.

The government spends money to bring tourists to B.C. and the service industry—hotels, restaurants, motels and service stations—bleeds them.

Museum

The Maritime Museum of B.C. should be moved to Rodd Hill and combined with a museum of the army on the west coast.

Provincial game wardens (soon to be conservation officers) should be supplied with secretaries so they can put more time in the field.

The game department offices should be moved from Vancouver and concentrated in Victoria.

Flying fishermen are flying to B.C.'s wilderness lakes and game country and depleting stocks, which although the flying fishermen leave no revenue here, will cost B.C. taxpayers plenty to restock.

Hunters in B.C. middle north are hunting from the road, wounding and killing moose, but not bothering to chase them into the bush, even for a couple of hundred yards, because they don't want the bother of packing them out.

The recreation department should immediately embark upon a planned program for marine recreation, including anchoring spots, floats, marinas and launching pads.

Save Wild Flowers

Wild flowers in B.C. should be protected like the dogwood and nurseries should be established so that the public

He could get wild flower plants for their gardens.

Outboard motors should be regulated on small lakes, but water skiers should be given skiing rights on bigger lakes, if they ski a reasonable distance from shore.

A wildlife sanctuary should be set aside and named after veteran CCFer, the late Ernest Winch.

Some day the leader of the opposition and the leader of the Liberal party may be seen in Victoria's new wax museum.

The recreation department must immediately start a wildlife survey on the Arrow Lakes region, which would be flooded under the Columbia hydro proposals.

The answer to the Cowichan River trail came to a question asked by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, who represents the Cowichan riding. Mr. Westwood said his department has investigated the proposal, first broached by the Cowichan Rod and Gun Club. Owners of private lands along the Cowichan want a jeep road that could be used for access to their property and for fire protection, he said.

Vancouver Move

Tom Bate (SC—Vancouver Point Grey) offered to take the Maritime Museum to Vancouver where it would be appreciated. He said it should be combined with the St. Roch, former RCMP vessel, as a true maritime museum with the government giving a grant of $30,000 a year.

Dan Campbell (SC—Comox) said it would make as much sense to take all forest revenue and spend it on forest protection, or all the revenue from mining and spend it on mining roads and grub staking, as it would to spend all fish and game licence revenues on wildlife conservation.

He said access roads built by the forest department had a marked effect on the harvest of fish and game, through access, but hunters and fishermen never suggested they should help pay for them.

He was replying to arguments broached by other members that a bigger proportion of fish and game revenues should be spent on wildlife conservation.

Buttle Playground

Mr. Campbell visualized the Buttle Lake-Campbell River system area as the "multi-use playground area of Vancouver Island." He said he was worried about giving away other parts of Strathcona Park to take in the more accessible and more useful areas of the Campbell River system, as originally Strathcona Park was just a line drawn on a map, anyway.

He said if a $5 saltwater

Hydrofoil Delayed

The on-again-off-again hydrofoil ferry service between Bellingham and Victoria is off again.

A spokesman for the Victoria agents said last night the start of the service has had to be delayed while arrangements are made to have passengers covered by insurance. He emphasized that there are no mechanical defects with the ferry, Flying Fish.

licence is charged fishermen, the money should be spent on stream rehabilitation to provide fish for everybody, instead of measures to reduce the number of fishermen or reduce the total catch.

John Squire (CCF—Alberni) warned there is tendency for communities and municipalities to slacken off on park development, just because the provincial government is doing such a good job.

He was critical because Nanaimo plans to sell its old golf course, when the provincial government is building a park area at adjacent Newcastle Island. "We are not gaining anything," he said. "Nanaimo should be prepared to keep the facilities already in existence."

Liberal Leader Ray Perrault called for a photography contest with big prizes as an inducement to attract tourists to B.C.

Premier Bennett said the highways program was the first big step in attracting tourists to B.C. He said the government's program was first to build highways, then to build campsites and then to encourage private enterprise to give better service and to get better co-operation from gas-line service stations. He said now the government is opening a tourist office in San Francisco and any criticism of government tourist policy is misplaced.

Herbert Bruch (SC—Esquimalt) said hotel, motel and restaurant service in B.C. is an absolute disgrace in some places which are taking advantage of tourists.

Leo Nimsick (CCF—Cranbrook) said any money spent on wildlife surveys in connection with hydro projects such as the Columbia should be charged to the hydro project and not to the fish and game branch.

Cedric Cox (CCF—Burnaby) said he didn't want to deprive water skiers of their fun, but their high-powered motors make a lot of racket. Donald Brothers (SC—Rossland-Trail) observed water skiers have hundreds of miles to ski, but always want to come close to shore to show how good they are.

Honor Winch

Lois Haggen (CCF—Grand Forks-Greenwood) asked members to look around their districts for a suitable place in their constituencies which might make a good wildlife sanctuary to be named in commemoration of Ernest Winch "who loved creatures—wildlife and humans."

Randolph Harding (CCF—Kaslo-Slocan) called for higher penalties for industries which pollute lakes and streams. He also charged the recreation department was discriminating against his CCF riding because it had provided an entrance to Kokaanee Park from Provincial Secretary Wesley Black's Nelson-Creston riding, but not from his Kaslo-Slocan riding.

Recreation Minister Westwood said the province of B.C. will never turn Garibaldi Park over to the federal government unless that government is prepared to say what it will do to develop it. He said the federal government has four parks in B.C. and hasn't developed one.

He said he felt the wildlife belonged to all the people of B.C., and although a good conservation program should be carried out, first considerations should be given to emergent needs such as social services and human needs.

He said preliminary wildlife surveys of the possible effects of Columbia River development on wildlife are now under way.

'Unfair' Question Gets Fair Reply

THE ORGANIZATION MAN: When members of the legislature attended the annual information briefing by the B.C. Power Commission yesterday one man stood out.

That was Walden Killings, the neophyte Sooke MLA for Victoria.

"We've heard quite a bit of guff this session that the Columbia River treaty is a second-best agreement," commented Walden.

Was this so? he asked B.C. Hydro chairman Dr. Hugh Keenleyside.

A number of other MLAs protested that this was an unfair question to ask the commission chairman.

"I don't think so," said Walden. "You don't think it's an unfair question, do you Dr. Keenleyside?"

Dr. Keenleyside looked at him.

Peter Bruton

"Yes, I do," he said.

WHERE ARE THEY NOW?

DEPT.: Politics is a thing of the past for Gowan Guesd, unsuccessful candidate for the Conservative nomination in the forthcoming Esquimalt-Saanich provincial election.

He is hard at work in Vancouver trying to rebuild his law practice with his old firm which he left before going to Ottawa two years ago as Prime Minister John Diefenbaker's executive assistant.

Friends say he is so far removed from the political world that he will not even go to Ottawa for the national Progressive Conservative convention.

PROOF OF PUDDING: Appliance salesman Don Matheson demonstrates those canister-type vacuum cleaners and the piece of resistance of his sales pitch is when he rips off the top of the cleaner and sticks it on the wall to demonstrate the strong suction.

He was in a private home the other day and reached the climax of his demonstration.

Don had a bit of difficulty getting the piece off the wall. He tugged with all his strength, and pow... not only did the equipment come away in his hand but a goodly portion of plaster from the wall did as well.

The company paid for the repairs.

STORIES REVISED DEPT.: A telephone call from Jim Penneck of the Victoria council, B.C. Federation of the Unemployed, explained that the taxi for the two unemployed pickets at the legislative buildings Tuesday night was donated by a friend of one of the pickets on duty.

Another call, from Carl Fallas, chided me for "hitting below the belt" and said I should never have reported the item on the grounds that

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My son was a nice, quiet kid until he went into the navy. I don't know what they teach boys there but Rudolph is a changed person.

Two days after he came home he started to give our Airedale saucers of beer. I told Rudolph I didn't think beer was good for dogs but he said it wouldn't hurt him any. Well, after a few days the Airedale wouldn't drink anything but beer. He turned up his nose at his water pan and then he'd go over to the icebox and sit there and cry.

Yesterday was the last straw. The dog got the hiccups. He hiccuped for two hours straight and then seemed to be getting weak so we called the vet. The vet said dogs can get crooked just like humans and to let him sleep it off. He also said to get the dog off the beer.

My son sneaks him beer when no one is looking. What can we do about this?—WORRIED MOTHER.

Dear Mother: Don't blame this on the navy. Your son sounds as if he's been Kooksville from 'way back.

Tell him he's being cruel to the dog and insist that he stop the foolishness or you'll find another home for the poor mutt.

Dear Ann: You were wrong when you advised parents to tell children they are adopted. This is my story:

We adopted an infant three days old. His mother didn't want him. We gave this boy a lovely home, the best of everything, a college education and we bought him a car for graduation. Today he is 35 years old, an engineer and doing well. Recently he said, "I suppose I should be grateful to you but I would have been just as well off in an orphanage. You people are strangers to me."

He would not have these feelings if he didn't know he was adopted. I'm very sorry we told him.—W.M.C.

Dear W.M.C.: The knowledge that he is adopted did not change his feelings to ward you. The relationship was never a good one. He was skilled at keeping his true emotions hidden, as many children are. I'd like to hear from other adopted children on this—and I'm betting you're outnumbered 100 to 1.

Talented Youngsters Perform at Meeting

Young musicians, whose names are becoming more and more well-known for their accomplishments, were on the program of the recent Junior Musical Arts Society meeting at which president Carolyn Grace Heal presided.

David Foster, pianist, accompanied "O Canada" at the opening of the meeting, which was followed by soloists and choirs.

Piano solos were by Cheryl Richards, Kathy Holborn, Lynn Batters, Wendy Aaronson, Judy Soper, Claudia Edwards, Jacqueline Court, Deanne Nelson, Evelyn Hammond, Bruce Fryer, Joan McCandish and Colin Bonneau.

There was a piano duet by Diane Grist and Joanne Reece, and violin solos by Lorraine Ward, accompanied by Miss Pamela Paver at the piano. Barbara Ann Court was accompanied by Mrs. G. Bates. Special entertainment was provided by Mrs. Vera Barclay and her girls choir.

After the singing of "God Save The Queen," accompanied by Jacqueline Court, refreshments were served. The next meeting will be a recital in Newstead Hall on Friday, April 7 at 7:30 p.m. Parents and friends of Junior Musical Arts are invited to attend.

Say Happy St. Patrick's Day With Party Fare from Ireland

This is the day to call together your Irish friends to celebrate Saint Patrick's Day. This is a joyous occasion for those with ties with the Emerald Isle, and the thoughtful hostess will provide the opportunity for them to enjoy good food and conversation.

We suggest a buffet supper, informal and gay for this occasion. The menu should feature such truly Irish dishes as Irish Stew, little new potatoes in their jackets, and for dessert, Leprechaun's pie. To give the stew a somewhat different look, try putting a pastry crust on top.

Make sure that your buffet table is gaily decked with shamrocks and that your candles are emerald green. For a novel touch make your candlesticks out of well-scrubbed potatoes. Make holes in them large enough to stick your candles in—you can get three slim tapers in one potato.

For something really different in a beverage serve Hot Tea Claret Punch. You will love to serve it in a punch bowl if you have one, if not, then use a large chafing dish. Invite your guests to drink from pottery or glass mugs and use cinnamon sticks instead of spoons.

HOT TEA CLARET PUNCH

(10 servings)
Juice of 3 lemons, 1 cup water, 1/2 cup sugar, 1 cup orange juice, 1/2 cup loganberry syrup, hot strong tea, cinnamon sticks.

LEPRECHAUN'S PIE

Two third of a cup raisins, 1/2 cup sugar (white or brown), 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 2 egg yolks, 1 cup sour cream, 4 tablespoons sugar, 8-inch baked pastry shell, 1/2 cup water, 2 tablespoons flour, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 whole egg, 2 egg whites, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla.

Bake an 8" pie shell, then cool it. Boil raisins and water together for 5 minutes. Mix sugar, flour, spices and salt in top of double boiler. Add yolks and whole egg, then beat into mixture. Stir in sour cream. Stir in hot raisin mixture slowly and cook over hot water until well-thickened—stir frequently. Cool, then pour into baked 8-inch pie. Cover with meringue made by beating egg whites until they hold a soft peak, then adding sugar gradually, beat until egg whites hold a stiff peak. Beat in vanilla. Delicately brown the meringue in a moderately slow oven of 325 degrees—about 20 minutes.

PERSONAL MENTION

Officers of HMCS Cape Breton and their wives will be guests at a hot buffet dinner this evening onboard the ship. The party, to be held in the Wardroom, is in honor of St. Patrick's Day.

Home from Trip

Dr. and Mrs. Harold Gill have returned to their home at 3008 Cadboro Bay Road after a three-week trip to Tucson, Ariz., and Las Vegas, Nev.

Parties for Bride

Miss Carole Milliken, who will be married Friday, has been guest of honor at a number of parties. A miscellaneous shower was given at the home of Mrs. Patrick McLoughlin, 1117A Bay Street, when staff of the Douglas and Cormorant Street Branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce were guests. A decorated basket held the many gifts. A corsage of mauve chrysanthemums was presented to Miss Milliken. Guests were Mrs. G. Urquhart, Mrs. D. Johnson, Mrs. B. Whitehouse, Mrs. M. St. Hilaire, Mrs. C. McInnes, Mrs. P. Lam, Mrs. F. Murfin, Mrs. B. Steggle, Mrs. E. Brown, Mrs. K. Robin, and the Misses M. Davies, R. Wong, Y. Lee, M. Quan, P. Thompson, E. Joe, M. Burr, K. Adams and E. Marr.

Mrs. L. Baxter was hostess to her niece at a miscellaneous shower at her Ontario Street home recently. A pink ribbon corsage was given to Miss Milliken and corsages were also given to Mrs. R. Milliken, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. M. Smith, mother of the groom-elect. Miss Leslie Ann Baxter, who will be flower girl at the wedding assisted the bride-elect. Also attending were Mrs. W. Hughes, Mrs. M. Parsons, Mrs. E. Milliken, Mrs. H. Milliken, Mrs. M. Garland, Mrs. M. Baxter, Mrs. F. Billingsworth, Mrs. W. Milliken, Mrs. M. Pomeroy, Mrs. N. Curran, Mrs. A. Hardy, Mrs. A. Binks, Mrs. G. Brookhall, Mrs. E. Rau, Mrs. J. Milliken and the Misses Sharon Walker, Gail Smith and Joan Davis.

A corsage of white chrysanthemums and heather was given to Miss Milliken at a shower in her honor given by Miss Sharon Walker at her Derby Road home. The many lovely gifts were contained in a gaily decorated pink and blue box. Bingo was played and refreshments were served. Those attending were Mrs. N. Curran, Mrs. K. Watson, Mrs. G. Huston, Mrs. A. Binks and the Misses Vivian Smith, Diane Matt, Angela Caddell, Marilyn Harman, Sharon Smith, Denise Hickling, Donna Mummery and Ann Stumph.

For Miss Deaville

Miss Carol Deaville, an April bride-elect, was honored at a miscellaneous shower recently when co-hostesses were Mrs. E. Allen and Mrs. L. Schott, at the latter's home, 478 Admirals Road. A wishing well held the many gifts. Yellow roses were presented to the bride-elect, and red roses in corsage to her mother, Mrs. W. G. Deaville.

Guests were Mrs. H. Schacht, Mrs. S. Morey, Mrs. N. Gregson, Mrs. E. T. Staley, Mrs. E. Ritchie, Misses Betty Ann Hawkins, Fern Abbott, Sharon Mitchell, Frances Chapman, Donna Davis, Danna O'Flynn, Arlene Reed, Helen Clarke and Ann Davis.

Married Recently

Mrs. Pearl Wayne and Mr. R. J. Carpenter were married recently in a quiet ceremony. They are now making their home in Victoria.

Surprise Shower

A surprise miscellaneous shower was held recently by Mrs. M. N. Wickett, 215 Superior Street, to honor Miss Elva Old, whose marriage to Mr. Tom Hosie will take place April 15 in Alberni. A corsage of red roses was presented to the bride-to-be, while her fiancé's mother, Mrs. Dorothy Hosie, received pink carnations. As the groom-elect is in the Royal Canadian Navy, a naval theme was seen in the decorations, and gifts were in a miniature ship.

Guests were Mrs. M. Keay, Mrs. A. Wilks, Mrs. J. Gibson, Mrs. M. Taylor, Mrs. A. Mohey, Mrs. E. Blair, Mrs. D. Best, Mrs. M. Wickett, Mrs. L. Hubbard, Mrs. D. Wickett, Mrs. L. Davie, Mrs. E. Bathgate, Mrs. A. Smith, Mrs. Olsen, Mrs. Old, Mrs. M. Wickett, Mrs. E. Pachal, Misses Evelyn Wickett, Sylvia Mohey, Dorothy Hosie, Ada Bathgate, Mary Bathgate and Naida Old.

Wedding Guests

Out-of-town guests at the recent Ed-Dale wedding were Mr. Frank Edl of Frank, Alta.; Mr. and Mrs. Leo Woods, North Surrey, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. C. Sturgeon, White Rock, B.C.; Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Dale, North Surrey, B.C. and Mr. and Mrs. M. Dale, Duncan, B.C.

Naden Party

St. Patrick's Day will be celebrated in HMCS Naden Wardroom with a bingo game and refreshments.

PPCLI Regimental Dance

The Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, Work Point, will mark the birthday of their Colonel-in-Chief, Lady Patricia Ramsay with an informal dinner dance this evening in the Mess.

Legion Auxiliaries To Hold Elections

At a special mid-Island district meeting of Canadian Legion Auxiliaries at Chemainus, Mrs. J. Russell Robinson was elected candidate to contest the election for Joint Districts representative, with the candidate to be named from the South Vancouver Island District. Mrs. Henry Jarvis, former district representative on B.C. Command for the past two years is not seeking re-election.

Mrs. M. Ringold, Nanaimo district president, presided. Present were two voting representatives from Nanaimo, Ladysmith, Salt Spring Island, Cowichan Lake, and Duncan Cowichan and Chemainus auxiliaries. The only auxiliary not represented was Cobble Hill. Candidates were Mrs. C.

Japanese Art To Be Taught

At St. Ann's Academy this week members of the Parent's Association were charmed and enlightened by a display and lecture in the art of flower arranging by Miss K. F. Edl. With only a few flowers and leaves this talented lady brought forth the most attractive creations. Miss Edl is a master of her art, having taught in Japan for six years and in Victoria High School night classes. The Japanese are old masters in the art of floral arranging and their influence on Miss Edl's work can be seen in the simplicity of her designs.

Lovers' Knots Trim Pink Bridal Gown

A quiet double-ring ceremony in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, united in marriage Patricia Rose Simson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Simson of 1317 Pembroke Street, and Mr. Bruce Norman Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, 954 Woolaston. Rev. Canon H. Jones officiated at the evening ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Simson was charming in a pink organza over taffeta with slightly bell-shaped skirt trimmed with lover's knots. Her gown had a scoop neckline and three-quarter sleeves. Her matching headpiece was held in place by a bandeau of pearls. She wore pearl jewellery and carried gardenias, white roses and stephanotis.

Bridesmaid Miss Margaret Smith chose shrimp-toned organza over taffeta in sheath style with wedding ring neckline and short sleeves. She wore a rhinestone coronet and carried feathered pink carnations and ivy.

Groomsman was Mr. Roy Smith.

Mr. E. A. Scott gave the toast to the bride in the Thistle Room of the Glenisiel Hotel. For a honeymoon in the United States the bride changed into a beige wool suit, brown hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith will live in Vancouver.

Makes Statue Of Caroline K

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI)—The face is familiar and so are the shoes.

But Caroline Kennedy will need an explanation when she sees a solid silver statuette depicting the scene-stealing pose struck during one of her daddy's news conferences.

The statuette of Caroline in her mommy's shoes doesn't look much like Caroline did that day she tottered in on high heels.

Gone are the pajamas. And gone, too, is the bathrobe with a hood hanging down the back. Instead, the Caroline in the statuette wears a fluffy and frothy party dress.

Apparently the change in costume—for the sake of grace—is okay with Caroline's parents.

Mrs. Fodor sent President Kennedy a photo of the statuette, explaining that it was her intention to have it cast in solid silver—if the first family agreed.

"I'm sure they don't mind the change in clothes one bit," Mrs. Fodor said.

She read a letter from the White House and signed by Evelyn Lincoln, personal secretary to the president, to prove it.

"Thank you for writing to the president and enclosing a photograph of the statuette you have created of his daughter," the letter read. "He is most appreciative of your kind offer and will be happy to accept your gift upon its completion."

Shy Spinster Tells of Love

HARRY TRUMAN'S

LONDON (UPI)—A shy spinster told a jury yesterday of her love for a married man, while defending herself against charges she photographed some of Britain's best-kept naval secrets for transmission to Russia.

Elizabeth Gee, 36, used whispered words and dainty gestures to tell the story of her romance with co-defendant Henry Houghton, 35, who worked with her at the Port land naval base anti-submarine research centre.

Houghton sat blinking his eyes as he listened with the other three defendants in the spy trial. They are Peter and Helen Kroger, London book sellers who are actually Mr. and Mrs. Morris Cohen of New York, and alleged spy-master Gordon A. Lonsdale, who is said to be a Russian although he says he is a Canadian.

Prosecution witnesses testified that when Miss Gee was seized with the others Jan. 7, she had in her shopping bag 200 photos of data from a top-secret naval "red-book."

The prosecution rested and the defence began its case by calling the bobbed-hair spinster to the stand.

Questioning turned to numbers written on a paper found in her possession when she was arrested.

Scotland Yard witnesses contended the numbers referred to secret documents in the naval base.

Miss Gee dismissed the numbers as her code for a Saturday morning grocery shopping list. "As well as I can remember," she said, "the numbers meant milk, tea, cake, black currant (jelly) and bread."

MRS. HARRY TRUMAN
... never in Alabama

'Utter Bores' at Public Dinners —And That Goes for Mrs. Truman

LONDON (AP)—Veteran Labor MP Emanuel Shinwell didn't object to the extra plutocratic or aristocratic money—just in the manner in which such hospitality is dispensed.

That apparently includes Mrs. Harry Truman and the wife of the Bishop of Washington.

Shinwell told the House of Commons Wednesday night that if he is asked to any more government receptions he will throw the invitations into his wastepaper basket.

He cited a dinner at the British Embassy in Washington.

"On my left," he said, "was Mrs. Truman and on my right was the wife of the Bishop of Washington. When I engaged in conversation with Mrs. Truman, all she could talk about was the church in Alabama."

"After a while I thought the other side might be more interesting. Members can imagine the nature of that conversation."

At Independence, Mo., Mrs. Truman said she didn't recall the dinner, but found Shinwell's comments "very funny."

"As for talking about the church in Alabama, I've never been there, so how could I?" Shinwell, speaking during a debate on a government request for £35,000 additional for government hospitality, said, "are usually object to the extra plutocratic or aristocratic money—just in the manner in which such hospitality is dispensed."

"I object to civil servants having free meals."

Assault Charge Dismissed Business Lever Inferred

City businessman W. A. Scott, 1082 Newport, lost out as complainant in an assault charge in city police court yesterday, when Deputy Magistrate J. A. Byers said he could not accept his evidence and drew the inference that Scott had used threat of the charge as a business lever.

Charged with assault causing bodily harm to Scott was Sander Domokos, 670 Battery. The charge was dismissed after more than two hours of testimony.

CHANGED FLEA
When the case first came to court, Domokos, without counsel, pleaded guilty and circumstances were given to Magistrate William Ostler by Scott.

After a remand, counsel Rodney Beavan appeared for Domokos and a change of plea to not guilty was allowed.

W. A. Scott Complainant

Scott said he and Mr. and Mrs. Domokos were partners at the time in ownership of Rone's Cafe, 631 Johnson. On the afternoon of Jan. 7, he said, he went to the cafe to protest to Domokos because the latter had not paid two Chinese cooks their wages.

At the cafe, Scott said, he "protested strongly" about the wages, ordered a meal and went into the kitchen.

"RUN OUT"
"Suddenly, I felt myself grabbed by the scruff of the neck and the shoulders, and I was forcibly run out of the cafe by the accused."

He went back and finished eating, Scott said, and Domokos struck him hard in the face and knocked him down.

At St. Joseph's Hospital, he was treated for two cracked ribs, a swollen face, bruises and a black eye.

DENIES BLOW
Cross-examined by Mr. Beavan, Scott denied he had made a disturbance in the cafe and that Domokos had asked him to be quiet; he denied making derogatory remarks about his marriage to Mrs. Domokos; he denied that his left arm had swung up and hit Domokos, his ring drawing blood; he denied drinking that afternoon.

"Is it possible," Mr. Beavan asked, "that your business difficulties with the accused influenced you in laying this charge?"

"To some extent," said Scott.

CALLED TWICE
Const. John Burdny testified he was called twice to the cafe.

The first time, he saw Scott inside, "waving his finger, shouting, 'I demand that this Chinese boy get his wages.'"

Const. Burdny described Scott's condition as "border line intoxication."

Domokos himself testified that Scott came into the cafe shouting and that while he was eating, Domokos heard Scott asking Mrs. Domokos about her marriage and making threats to have both of them deported.

Magistrate Byers said Const. Burdny's report of what he saw did not support the complainant's account.

BUSINESS
"The complaint was laid weeks later, indicating that the complainant was lacking in the bona fides of his case and may have been using the threat of a complaint in his business dealings with the accused," he added.

NEWSPAPERS HAVE GUARANTEED READERSHIP

New Look Forecast For Agriculture

WINNIPEG (CP)—A new look for agriculture that will provide for changing food demands both at home and abroad was forecast Thursday at the opening of the second national farm forum sponsored by the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce.

Federal Agriculture Minister Alvin Hamilton forecast a cabinet-level conference of Canadian and United States officials to start a two-nation approach to North American agricultural problems.

Mr. Hamilton said in an interview as the conference opened that he had invited Agriculture Secretary Orville Freeman and Interior Secretary Stewart Udall of the United States to attend the conference within the next week.

The meeting would seek to examine the basic position of agriculture and determine what should be the aims of a farm program.

NOT SEPARATE

"We've got ourselves in a box today because of a tendency to look upon agriculture as a separate entity," he said. "We must realize and appreciate the effects other segments of the economy have upon the industry and the effect agriculture has on the whole nation."

The question of land use must be re-examined.

"Millions of people in North America today are hunters and they are willing to pay for the improvement of their sport. Would it be sound for farmers, located on poorer lands along the flyways, to plant crops which would provide food for these ducks? They might be paid by sportsmen's organizations."

MIGHT BE BEST

"Now, don't look on this as some sort of crackpot scheme. It might be completely practical. This might be the best possible use for these lands."

"I use this idea as an example of the sort of thinking needed today. We must reduce agriculture to its basics and then determine where we should go from there."

Peace Talks Start Soon

PARIS (Reuters)—Official Wednesday night's statement, peace talks between France and the rebel "Algerian provisional government" are expected to begin next week, usually well-informed sources reported Thursday.

It also was learned that said the reaction of the rebel President de Gaulle wrote leaders was favorable.

Hungry Whites Held in Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE. The on their mercy mission, the Congo (UPI)—Malayan troops United Nations command quashed through bush country, pressed anew with Congolese yesterday to save 30 whites who may include 23 American missionaries held captive on short rations by Lumumbist Congolese.

As the Malaysians embarked

There was no indication when the Malaysians would reach the trapped whites who had appealed to the UN command for food.

The UN command was threatened with the loss of another supply base at Coquilhatville, capital of Equatorial Province. Armed Congolese soldiers surrounded a UN supply plane and forced it to return to Leopoldville, 350 miles away.

"Any other UN planes flying in will be shot up," the Congolese warned.

Immediate Congo Debate Demanded by Russians

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—Russia yesterday demanded an immediate general assembly debate on the Congo. Assembly president Frederick Boland set a Congo session for Monday. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko told Boland the situation "is steadily deteriorating as a result of aggression."

Garden Notes

It's That Day Again!

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

You wouldn't think there would be any occupational hazards associated with the writing of a garden column, and in fact, for 364 days of the year, the job is as safe as houses, the only hazard being calluses on my two typing fingers. Comes St. Patrick's Day, though, things get a bit tense around the Chesnut household. It all goes back to seven years ago, to the spring of 1954, when I stuck my neck out in this column and stated flatly that there was no such plant as a true Irish shamrock. This rash statement brought down a storm of abuse upon my head from wild-eyed Irishmen from all over the province. They haven't forgiven me either, for every year, on March 17, I get a flock of abusive letters reminding me of my folly, some of them threatening to hew a shill-lough through my coldframes to teach me the error of my ways. Like elephants, the Irish have long memories.

Many of these letters, still coming in after seven years, offer a wealth of specific detail and evidence proving, beyond any shadow of a doubt, that there is a real Irish shamrock. Trouble is, this evidence is conflicting and contradictory.

Three writers tell me, for instance, that (a) the shamrock has larger leaves than a clover; (b) it has smaller leaves than a clover; (c) it is a lighter green; (d) it is a darker green; (e) it will grow only on the banks of the Shannon; (f) it will grow only on the banks of the Liffey; (g) it has pink flowers; (h) it has yellow flowers; (i) it never bears a flower.

I am not a very brave person and I don't want my coldframes smashed, and I'll cheerfully take it all back if any of my Irish readers can show me the shamrock listed in any accredited book on botany. In the meantime, my private opinion remains that there is no such plant and that any plant or seed masquerading under the name of shamrock will turn out to be either an oxalis or a small-leaved seedling white clover.

This would be a good spot, I think, to get in a plug for a plant called Bells of Ireland. This is an annual flower, quick and easy from seed and, while not exactly colorful, it is odd and interesting and very useful indeed for off-beat floral arrangements.

Each plant produces three or four stems, growing to a height of about 2½ feet, and each spike is set along its length with small cup-shaped flowers of the clearest and most translucent green color. By themselves, a bouquet of Bells of Ireland isn't much, but these spikes of green flowers are invaluable for mixing with more brightly-colored blooms and for providing added interest in bowl and vase arrangements. The spikes can be dried, too, for use during the winter.

Seeds are listed by most catalogue seedsmen these days and are best sown around the end of this month, either in a coldframe or in a small outdoor seed bed. Cover with not more than a quarter-inch of sifted soil, as these seeds have a marked dislike for deep planting. They are a bit sluggish in germinating—some of mine took three weeks to come through—and I think it might be an idea to cover the sowed ground with a wet sack to maintain moisture during the long germinating period.

When two inches tall, the seedlings may be shifted on the point of your trowel to the site where they are to bloom, which may be either in full sun or partial shade. I suggest a spot fairly close to the street line, where passersby can stare at the paddy-green flowers, scratch their heads and wonder what cooks!

Hollywood Today

By Sheilah Graham

Million for Being Naughty

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Brigitte Bardot expects to make $1,000,000 from her newest naughty epic, "The Truth," from the United States alone. And she is at a loss to understand the published remark of her ex-producer, Raoul Levy, that, as her publicity gets bigger, her box-office draw gets smaller. No one believes this, not even Levy, who has asked Brigitte to co-star for him in "Marco Polo." Her answer is a big loud no.

David Niven's next movie is "Shocking," with Sophia Loren. With that title, how can they miss?

Gina Lollobrigida gets $200,000 from Metro for every film she makes for them. So they were more than hurt at her recent "I hate my MGM pictures" interview.

Joan Fontaine had this little story to tell on her return to New York from Hollywood. A stranger on the plane told her, "I saw you last night on the late show in 'Roberta.'" "You mean 'Rebecca,'" Joan gently corrected. "Yeah, that's right, the stranger agreed. I also saw you six times in 'Wuthering Heights.'" At this point Joan says she lapsed into silence. Merle Oberon was the star of "Wuthering."

Now, why would Yul Brynner want to give up his thriving movie career to direct live television shows? That's what he says he wants to do!

To judge by the still photographs, which are very dramatic, Frank Sinatra will be winning another Oscar next year for his role of rough guy in "The Devil at Four O'Clock."

Carolyn Jones, Hugh O'Brian, Lloyd Bridges and Dennis Weaver are selling their "Whispering Waters" hotel in Palm Springs, and will put the money into a large Los Angeles apartment. Scratch any star and you find an expert in real estate. Just give me land, is the cry of every star with money to invest.

Canitillas, Mexican star of "Around the World in 80" says he has been in Paris to set up a sequel to his "Pepe" picture. This one is titled, "Pepe in Paris," and this time he will meet the European stars. In the first movie he came to Hollywood for a handshake and a song and dance with people like Bing Crosby, Edward G. Robinson and Greer Garson.

Meteorite Yields Life Clues

NEW YORK (UPI) — The men who first explore space may find life in some form, three scientists said yesterday. They based their belief on evidence from space itself—a certain meteorite that fell near a small town in France 97 years ago.

The report of their findings was made at a meeting of the New York Academy of Sciences by Dr. Bartholomew Nagy and Dr. Douglas J. Hennessy of Fordham University, and Dr. Warren G. Melnschein of the Esso Research and Engineering Company.

They said their study of fragments of the stony meteorite that fell near Orgueil, France, on May 14, 1864, led them to believe that—as Dr. Melnschein put it—"Wherever this meteorite originated, something lived."

Dr. Hennessy added: "Those who explore space might expect to find living forms when they get there."

Their examination of a 10-gram sample of the meteorite disclosed organic compounds (composed of hydrogen and carbon atoms) which have thus far been found only in living things or their remains.

The presence of these compounds, the scientists said, indicates the presence of some form of life where the meteorite formed.

The three admitted they did not know whether the meteorite came from the solar system or from beyond, or how old or in what form the life might be.

Dr. Nagy noted, however, that the hydrocarbons they found were the same organic compounds that may be found in butter. "And," Dr. Nagy added wryly, "butter comes from cows."

The scientists went on to explain that the hydrocarbons are found in many other living substances and stressed that they have no idea what form of life, high or low, the hydrocarbons may have helped form.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said yesterday all the nations of earth should join in a one-planet scientific assault upon the mysteries of space.

James E. Webb, NASA administrator, told the National Rocket Club that his agency was already taking steps leading toward this objective.

Earlier, Dr. John P. Hagen, director of United Nations affairs for NASA, told the club, meeting here to honor the late rocket pioneer Dr. Robert H. Goddard, of the need for planet-wide co-operation in space research.

At the same time, NASA announced initial success in a two-month experiment to unveil some of the mysteries of Venus by bouncing radio signals off the earth's neighboring planet.

Webb said, "Our purpose is to benefit all mankind. This is itself a reason enough to seek the co-operation of other nations."

"Space research is based on such an advanced technology that it must draw upon the entire world for its ideas, for the insights it must apply to the real meanings of factual information and for the increased knowledge that will bring ultimate benefits."

NASA is now conducting, or preparing to conduct with the scientists of other nations.

He cited co-operative projects between the United Kingdom and Canada and between NASA and the French, Italians and British as evidence of steps being taken leading to world-wide co-operation. Preliminary discussions with the French and Japanese on other projects are also steps toward this goal, he said.

"I would like to emphasize that the extensive activities which the agency is now undertaking are really but a preliminary effort to the world-wide utilization of the benefits which will inevitably flow from the programs," Webb added.

Hagen said the challenges of space exploration confront all peoples "with the necessity of acting as members of the same planet, capable of discussing openly problems of a mutual nature."

Medical Hookup Across Country

NEW YORK (UPI) — Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, chairman of the Radio Corporation of America, proposed yesterday that the American Medical Association and representatives of the electronics industry create a group to study the feasibility of a "national medical clearing house."

He told the National Health Council Forum that the clearing house could be stocked with the latest medical information and linked electronically with every major hospital and medical school in the country. The center could also have electronic files of health records of almost every American.

"If a doctor in a San Francisco hospital sought the source of information on a particular subject, he would simply dial a number," Sarnoff said. "Instantly, a relevant bibliography would flash on a TV-like screen before him. Then, when he made his choice of a particular article, he could dial again and have a microfilm version of the article on his screen."

Files on individual patients, he said, could be gathered from doctors' offices, hospitals and insurance company files. The physician could simply dial the identifying code number of his patient and obtain an up-to-date report, he said.

"I believe electronics can aid immeasurably by permitting the doctor to hear more through radio; to see quickly—through computing techniques," he said.

LONDON (Reuters)—Britons Thursday enjoyed their third successive day of summer sunshine as the temperature soared to an unseasonal 71 degrees at noon. The thermometer Wednesday hit 71 degrees, a record for the date.

Jaycees 'All Out' For Miss Canada

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce is "going all out" to bring the 1961 Miss Canada title to Victoria.

"We have the most beautiful girls in Canada living right here so it is only fitting that we should win," Trevor Barlow, director of the Jaycee fair, said last night.

The Miss Victoria contest is held during the Jaycee fair—set this year for May 15-20—and the winner represents the city in the Miss Canada finals. Vivi Petersen, Miss Victoria of 1959, came second in the Canada-wide contest.

"In seeking girls to enter the Miss Victoria contest we are paying careful attention, not only to beauty, but also to talent, which counts high in the Miss Canada contest," Mr. Barlow said.

Mr. Barlow appealed for Greater Victoria residents to suggest suitable girls to the Jaycee office, 816 Wharf Street, at EV 3-4521.

Totem Pole

Victoria's Chief Mungo Martin might be commissioned to carve a totem pole at Seattle's Century 21 world's fair next year to attract tourists to Vancouver Island.

Walter Dodsworth, chairman of the tourist trade group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce, will suggest this to a meeting of the group to be held at the Olde England Inn, 615 p.m. Tuesday.

He suggested Chief Martin could carve the pole during the exposition and the completed pole could be given to Seattle at the completion of the fair.

'Guest' Refuses

For the first time, a "mystery guest" chosen to come to Victoria in connection with a Kinsmen bingo night has refused.

Mrs. A. Mawson, 74 of Halifax, England, declined the Kinsmen Club's offer to bring her to Victoria. Her name had been submitted by her niece, Mrs. S. R. Sampson, 625 Hoy Lake Avenue.

But Kinsmen were not stumped. Three names were

Little Girl Drowns In Old Well

NANAIMO (CP)—A three-year-old Nanaimo girl drowned in an abandoned well Wednesday in the city's second infant drowning tragedy within two months.

Christine Joanne Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cunningham, was found in the water-filled well by two neighbors, after a search for her had begun.

The little girl slipped into the well through a rotting wooden cover which evidently gave way under her weight, said police.

The effects of a federal government policy on welfare payments and the aims of world communism are identical, a Victoria meeting was told last night.

George Hahn, Social Credit candidate in the Esquimalt-Saanich federal by-election, made this statement at an election rally last night at Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall, attended by some 30 persons.

Mr. Hahn said there is a vast reservoir of unemployed persons, capable of employment, who are being paid welfare money for doing nothing. He suggested that municipalities should be given the right to the services of these people without charge.

"Any person who is in receipt of this unemployed employable assistance must not work for his money," he said. "If the municipalities have these people work for them they must pay them themselves—they can't use welfare funds."

"It is a progressive picture of society selling itself into bondage because as a man or woman becomes dependent on the state he becomes subservient to the state."

"Communists... are not concerned about fighting us in a 'hot' war of any kind. They don't intend to fight us, but they intend we shall decay and become subservient to the state. That is their way," he said.

Youth Pleads Guilty

One of two city youths questioned by Victoria police Wednesday evening about a number of recent offences, including the "shooting-up" of four shops last week, pleaded guilty in city court yesterday to one charge of breaking, entering and theft.

Rodney A. Leason, 18, of 1795 Rockland, admitted breaking into Spencer's Stores Ltd., 1420 Douglas, on Feb. 14 and stealing a quantity of goods.

REMANDED

At the request of prosecutor Angus Smith, Leason was remanded to today. It was explained that there was "a considerable number" of other charges to be brought.

The other youth appeared in juvenile court yesterday and was ordered transferred to open court.

R. H. Ley Passes Here

Richard Halwa Ley, 79, a former chief inspector of the British Columbia Liquor Control Board, died in Victoria yesterday.

Born in Penzance, England, Mr. Ley lived in Victoria more than 40 years. His home was at 150 Cook Street.

He is survived by his widow, Therese, at home; one son, Lt. Cmdr. John R. H. Ley of Kingston, Ontario; one daughter, Mrs. A. B. German of Halifax; a brother, Col. H. Ley in England, and six grandchildren.

FACES FLAME, INSULTS FLY
AS CCF RAGES AT SPEAKERLegislature Near-Shambles
At Start of Labor Bill Debate

By PETER BRUTON

Legislature was reduced to near-shambles last night as raging tempers flared into a fist-shaking, name-calling furor over the government's labor legislation and the right of deputy speaker Alex Matthew to sit as an "unbiased" chairman.

It was the most violent explosion of the session.

Labor legislation was momentarily forgotten as CCF members jumped to their feet to protest the right of Mr. Matthew to sit in the Speaker's chair because of a letter he wrote the Vancouver Sun Wednesday in support of the labor bill.

Must Leave

The protests were answered with threats that the CCF members would be "named" — a move which forces the offenders to leave the chamber and the debate until the House decides they may return.

Attorney General Robert Bonner said the CCF protests were "an insufferable affront," a gratuitous insult to the chair, and "despicable."

The explosion, which brought crowds in the packed galleries to their feet, erupted a few minutes before 10 p.m. when CCF leader Robert Strachan looked up midway through a lengthy attack on the labor legislation and saw that Mr. Matthew, the Social Credit M.L.A. for Vancouver Centre, was sitting in the Speaker's chair.

Took Over

Mr. Speaker Hugh Shantz had asked his deputy to take over for a few minutes while he left the chamber. "Mr. Chairman," said Mr. Strachan, quietly but firmly, "I am asking you to recall the Speaker, on a point of order."

Mr. Matthew hesitated. "Mr. Chairman," continued Mr. Strachan, "I have no confidence in you in view of your biased attitude . . . I resent that!" shouted Mr. Matthew.

"You may resent that, Mr. Speaker," snapped the CCF chief, "but I want THE Speaker called back right now."

Challenge

"No sirree," said Mr. Bonner, almost voiceless with a throat infection. "I challenge you, Mr. leader of the opposition, and I'll have a division on it if necessary . . ."

"I want no prejudiced chairman in this House," answered Mr. Strachan.

"I think you should be named, Mr. Leader," croaked Mr. Bonner. "Withdraw and observe the courtesies . . . it's insufferable."

Randolph Harding (CCF—Kaslo-Slocan) entered the fight. "I'm going to suggest to you," he told Mr. Matthew, "that you call the Speaker in. This House will be in shambles in a few minutes . . ."

'Sit Down'

"Sit down, sit down, sit down," chanted government backbenchers.

Attorney General Bonner rapped: "It's a gratuitous insult to the Speaker of the House."

He added: "My voice is cracked but my sentiments are in order. It's an insufferable affront."

Gordon Dowling (CCF—Burnaby) tried to bring the debate back to a more normal level and said he felt the opposition would be mollified if Mr. Matthew would apologize for sending the letter to the paper.

About this time Mr. Speaker Shantz returned and took over from Mr. Matthew, who appeared close to tears and whose face was beetroot red and bathed in perspiration.

"This is despicable," said Attorney-General Bonner.

"I'm not interested in any further points of order," said Mr. Speaker Shantz as more and more CCF members jumped to their feet.

"He's convicted himself in the daily press," said Randolph Harding, referring to Mr. Matthew.

Clearly Stated

The Speaker said it was clearly stated in standing orders that when he left the chair for any reason whatsoever, he should be replaced by the deputy speaker—in this case Mr. Matthew.

"I'll have no more of this nonsense," he ruled sternly. "If any member had anything against the deputy speaker, he could only voice his complaint in a motion."

The legislature echoed as government and opposition hurled insults across the floor at each other, ignored the Speaker and stood up shouting in white-hot anger.

Nothing Like It

Veteran political observers said they had never seen anything like it, not even during the furious debates over the Sommers case.

"If there's any more of this, I'm going to have to name a member," said Mr. Speaker Shantz.

Mr. Harding said chaos would result if Mr. Matthew was allowed back in the chair. He asked that the motion in show lack of confidence in Mr. Matthew be voted there and then.

"You can give notice on the order paper," said the Speaker.

The crossfire echoed around the chamber, CCF and government members continued to shout.

'No More'

"I'll have no more of this or I'll name someone!" shouted Mr. Speaker Shantz above the din.

"I'm not going to sit here and have you threaten me!" shouted John Squire (CCF—Alberni) in reply.

"Sit down," said the Speaker. "If you get up again, I will name you."

"On a point of order," said Mr. Squire, deliberately rising to his feet.

"What's your point?" snapped Mr. Shantz.

"I'm not going to be threatened by anyone," said Mr. Squire.

"Sit down," said the Speaker.

Arthur Turner (CCF—Vancouver East) said that in view of Mr. Matthew's letter to the newspaper he asked leave of the House to move a motion without notice.

"Shall leave be granted?" asked Mr. Speaker.

"Yes!" shouted the opposition. "No!" answered the government.

Under these circumstances the motion was not admitted. It must be placed on the order paper today.

Ties Record

Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion scored his 50th goal of NHL season last night as Montreal defeated Toronto, 5-2. Historic marker tied record set by Maurice Richard in 50-game 1944-45 schedule. Frank Mahovlich, again held scoreless, has 47 goals. (See picture, story, page 10.)

'Another Perfect Game'

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker bowled another perfect game at the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference, national director Allister Grosart told the opening session of the Conservative party's annual meeting Thursday night.

"It's amazing how he comes up with them," he said.

He told the Progressive Conservative Association that Mr. Diefenbaker had left London and suggested delegates meet him at Uplands Airport this morning.

Mr. Grosart, who also lashed out at newspaper and television critics who do not spend as much time as the prime minister studying national problems, was cheered by the audience when he referred to Mr. Diefenbaker and the Commonwealth conference.

NO REFERENCE

He did not refer directly to the South African apartheid issue or other work of the conference.

Mr. Grosart said the Conservatives should embark on "the greatest grass-roots campaign" in the history of Canadian politics, with a party campaigner and team assigned to every one of the 46,000 polling stations in Canada.

PARTY REPORTS

The first plenary session heard the presidents of four branches of the party and the national director. Delegates stood and applauded when Mrs. Paul Sauve, widow of the late premier of Quebec and president of the Quebec association, took her place on the platform after the meeting began.

During the day, annual meetings were held by the Progressive Conservative Women's Association, the Young Progressive Conservatives of Canada, and the Progressive Conservative Student Federation. (See story on page 2.)

Nazi Killer Goes to Jail

NUERNBERG, Germany (AP)—August Kolb, 67, former chief of the stockpile in the Nazi concentration camp of Sachsenhausen, was sentenced to three years and two months in prison Thursday for helping two prisoners to death during the Second World War.

Sky's the Limit for Canada
If People Unite, Expert Says

TORONTO (CP)—A unified Canadian people can go to success unthought of up to now, H. George De Young, recently appointed chairman of the National Productivity Council, said Thursday night in a panel discussion on Canadian trade.

To reach such goals, however, Mr. De Young stated, there must be co-operation among all parts of the economy — management, government, labor, agriculture, primary and secondary production industries. He added:

GET A JOB

"Let's face it: one unemployed member of the Canadian team is as important as another, whether he be wheat farmer, miner, fisherman or steelworker. Let's get a job for him in Canada."

He spoke at a dinner and panel discussion held under the joint sponsorship of the Canadian Exporters' Association and the Board of Trade of Metropolitan Toronto.

FREE TRADE

Robert Winters, president of Rio Tinto Mining Company of Canada Ltd., and former minister of public works, said Canada should follow a policy looking to freer world trade, but concluded:

"While I am strongly opposed to increased barriers against imports, I do agree that a reduction of imports into Canada is desirable and should be one underlying objective of Canadian economic policy."

NEW ERA

"I also believe, however, that in this new era of revived international competition and of the emergence of great trading giants with enormous productive capacity, there is a special responsibility upon the government and people of Canada to agree to take special measures to ease the very serious problems of adjustment that result therefrom, and to promote the development of our secondary manufacturing industries."

J. Douglas Gibson, general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, stated:

NO CHANCE

"There is no chance of keeping up in the technological race in a closed type of economy that tries to do a bit of everything. A country, unless it is on the scale of the United States or Russia, has to specialize if it is to keep pace."

Mr. Gibson said that while Canada is more dependent on the United States economy than it used to be, it probably was no more vulnerable now exposed.

26 Japanese Miners Die
Including 24 Rescuers

YAHATA, Japan (AP)—Hope was abandoned Thursday for 26 men trapped in a coal mine after a fire 3,000 feet below ground. Twenty-four of the men had gone into the pit to rescue two trapped by the flames, and all now are presumed dead.

UN Raps Fingers
Of South Africa

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The General Assembly censured South Africa Thursday for repeatedly ignoring United Nations resolutions aimed at eventual freedom for the territory of Southwest Africa.

By a vote of 74 to 0 with nine abstentions, the assembly approved a resolution that criticized South African moves toward annexation of the huge territory on Africa's southwest coast—a former League of Nations mandate.

The action came on the heels of South Africa's decision to withdraw from the Commonwealth because of criticism of its white supremacy policies.

There was speculation that South Africa might also withdraw from the United Nations.

Only two members of the Commonwealth — Britain and Australia — were among the nine abstainers. The others were Belgium, the Dominican Republic, Finland, France, Luxembourg, Portugal and Spain.

DESPITE FEELING

The United States voted for the resolution despite the feeling of Britain, France and other colonial powers that it had legal shortcomings.

It called on UN members closely associated with South Africa to bring pressure on that country to change its policies in the former German-ruled territory it took over in 1915, and governs under a League of Nations mandate.

Verwoerd said he had in fact agreed to the inclusion in the draft conference communiqué of most of the criticism by the Afro-Asian-Canadian group.

Verwoerd's press conference was at the end of a day which saw these other developments:

1. In Cape Town, Verwoerd's home foes attempted a form of censure in Parliament by proposing an adjournment resolution. Verwoerd's party easily defeated the motion.

2. Verwoerd's announcement that South Africa would leave the Commonwealth caused a flurry of selling of South African gold shares on the London Stock Market this morning. The market value of shares in four leading gold mines fell by more than $42,000,000.

Irish Paint Burns Green
To Horror of Citizenry

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP)—"This is an outrage," said police chief Bryan Neely.

"I abhor this sort of thing," chimed in Mayor William T. Walker.

"This is a terrible thing to occur," echoed Frank F.

Creighton, chairman of the Fredericton Board of Trade's tourist and convention committee.

"Shocking," cried the citizenry.

Cause of the anger was the head-to-toe 'green' paint job which persons unknown applied to the city's beloved statue of Scottish poet Robbie Burns some time Wednesday night.

Chief Neely has launched an investigation into the "violation," apparently intended as a prank to coincide with St. Patrick's Day—March 17.

School Tax Hike
Faces Cowichan

NORTH COWICHAN — Northern portion of the municipality of North Cowichan, in School District 67, faces a possible two-mill increase in the school tax rate this year.

Only a slight increase, on the other hand, is expected in the southern section of the municipality in School District 65.

The municipality's share of costs in School District 67 this year will total $153,597, up from $127,356 last year. In School District 65, the municipality's share is $398,721, compared to $390,756 last year.

On this basis, Reeve Don Morton said there would likely be a two-mill increase in SD 67 and perhaps an increase of half a mill in SD 65.

NANAIMO — With more than $2,000,000 in assets last year, the Nanaimo and District Credit Union boosted membership to nearly 6,000.

At the 15th annual meeting Thursday, the board of directors recommended that last year's $85,593 surplus be distributed in two ways: 1, as a 4-per-cent dividend on shares; 2, as a 20-per-cent rebate of interest on all loans in good standing as of Dec. 31.

President A. R. Glen reported that since the Nanaimo branch has been incorporated loans to members have exceeded the $5,000,000 mark.

Last year there were 1,400 borrowers with nearly $1,000,000 in loans.

This accumulated the largest surplus for distribution in the branch's history.

At the same time, it held the line on loan delinquency and actually reduced the amount considered doubtful of collection.

DUNCAN — Funeral services were held at Duncan Thursday afternoon for Henrietta Augusta Marriner, 65, a native daughter of the Cowichan district and last surviving descendant of a pioneer family that settled here in 1862.

Her father, Edward, was North Cowichan's first municipal treasurer. After his death, before the turn of the century, the family moved into a house on the banks of the Cowichan River and the famous fishing pool below soon became known as "Marriner's Pool."

Predeceased by her mother and two sisters, Miss Marriner continued to reside in the family home up until the time of her death Tuesday.

She was an active member of St. Peter's Anglican WA and the SPCA.

Services were conducted by Rev. W. E. Greenhalgh with interment in St. Peter's Churchyard Cemetery.

LANQUET BLAND — Police said Thursday they fear a 65-year-old Saskatoon, Sask., widow drowned two days after renting a house on this isolated island between Texada and Vancouver Islands.

A sea and land search started Saturday, failed to trace Mrs. Jean Corfield. Police said she was last seen Saturday near the home she rented.

Police said they believe she fell from a wharf near the house and was swept out to sea. Search has been called off.

DUNCAN — A letter from King's Daughters' Hospital to city council, asking if Duncan volunteer fire department

South Half

would offer its services to the proposed new district hospital. If asked, will be referred to Fire Chief George Sanderson for consideration.

Mayor Jack Dobson noted the new hospital would be located on Gibbins Road in North Cowichan and commented: "We will probably co-operate, but I doubt if we can provide firefighting service in the municipality free of charge."

LADYSMITH — The village commission waterworks renewal project is making good headway along Third Avenue laying a new six-inch main which will continue along to Methuen Street.

The householder is not bothered with the long shutoffs during this project due to building up of a valve system which allows one block at a time to be shut off as work proceeds along the avenue.

Copper piping is laid at each connection.

PORT ALBERT — John Quist has been elected president of Alberni District Scandinavian Club.

He will be installed along with other officers of the organization at the annual banquet to be held in Greenwood Hotel on March 25.

Also elected were Sven Nilsson, vice-president; Hazel Hagstrom, secretary; Anton Borg, conductor; Heige Hagstrom, warden; Evelyn Back, three-year trustee; George Lund and Victor Kulla have one and two years, respectively, to serve as trustees.

Tickets for the banquet are now available from members in all parts of the city. Anyone interested is invited to phone president Robert Kronlund, 2987-L, or Mrs. Back, 856-L, for information.

NANAIMO — Upper Island chiropractors will hold their eighth annual Vancouver Island rendezvous in Nanaimo on Saturday and Sunday.

It is expected that chiropractors from the mainland will also attend the function which will include a dinner and dance plus X-ray and technique symposiums.

DUNCAN — Driving his mother's car when not covered by insurance cost Gordon Albert Aronson, 19, of Duncan a fine of $15 and costs in police court Thursday. He said he wouldn't be driving any more until he got his own car on the road at the end of April.

NORTH COWICHAN — No new trailers or trailer courts will be permitted to spring up in North Cowichan municipality under an amendment to the zoning bylaw proposed by municipal council.

The amendment will exclude any further trailer developments in rural areas, the only area in which they have been permitted to locate up to now. Council, however, will reserve the right to grant temporary trailer permits up to a maximum of 60 days.

The new amendment, which will not be retroactive, will be submitted to a hearing of the zoning board of appeal on April 5.

Four other appeals are to be heard the same day. Council as a whole sits as the board of appeal.

LADYSMITH — President Mrs. L. H. Shupe, and project convener Mrs. John Luscombe, will take calls and arrange for pick-up of donations to the big rummage sale Saturday, March 25 in the Lions' Den. Sale is under the auspices of the Ladysmith General Hospital ladies' auxiliary.

Mrs. J. V. Dods, sewing convener, would welcome non-member volunteers for hospital mending. In view of the rummage sale, the Thrift Shop will be closed on Friday, March 24. The March meeting acknowledged several gifts to the baby showcase at the hospital.

COURTENAY — A shield and $50 cash was awarded the Comox Valley Little Theatre for the best skit in the 15th annual Skattered Skits show, put on by the Courtenay Recreational Association.

Attendance of over 1,000 was the best in several years. Runners-up among five competing groups were the Anti-Radiation Club and the Kinsmen. A sixth skit representing Campbell River proved one of the most popular with the crowd but did not qualify because of its length.

Little Theatre's prize winning entry used a TV theme to satirize local highways and sewer construction problems. Proceeds of the annual shows help sponsor the CRA's extensive recreation program for children and adults.

COURTENAY — A second suspect was charged in police court Thursday in connection with the $2,500 robbery of a local store last month.

Charles R. Westrand, 18, Vancouver, was remanded without plea to March 25. Bail was set at $4,000.

Robert Hatfield White also is being held on $4,000 bail on the same charge. He elected trial by jury and was remanded to March 24.

DUNCAN — A $10,359 contract for the addition of one room and construction of a covered play area at Crofton Elementary School has been awarded to Burak Construction Co. of Duncan.

Successful tender was the lowest of four bids for the job.

LAKE COWICHAN — The Kiwanis club is already looking ahead to summer.

Date for the club's annual powerboat regatta has been set as Sunday, August 20, two months later than usual.

In previous years the regatta has been staged in mid-June and has been beset by bad weather.

DUNCAN — Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce will hold its annual banquet and installation on Thursday, April 20.

Three-man nominating committee named by President David Williams to line up a slate of officers for the 1961-62 term consists of Bert Evans, Will Dobson and Ken McAdam.

NANAIMO — Oscar Thomas has been named first president of the Nanaimo Social and Athletic Club. Other officers are Dick White, first vice-president, and Miss Joy White, secretary.

City Crime Lab
Far Too Costly Expert Thinks

Crime laboratories are a luxury which few local police forces can afford to set up, staff and operate, the former boss of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police said here yesterday.

L. H. Nicholson, retired commissioner of the RCMP, said forces considering such a move would "be wise to look at the problem in a regional way."

VERY EXPENSIVE — "It's a very expensive operation—too expensive for most individual forces or even small groups of forces," he said. "And then there is the big problem in getting the type of people you need for staff."

At the same time, Mr. Nicholson called for absorption or merging of "hundreds" of tiny, inefficient police forces across Canada.

Victoria Police Chief John Blackstock recently called for a crime laboratory to serve the Victoria area.

MAIN COMPLAINT — Main complaint of local forces is that evidence requiring laboratory inspection must go all the way to the Regina facilities of the RCMP, and time is consumed when laboratory workers are summoned to testify on findings at trials here.

"I think regional efforts would work out best," Mr. Nicholson said. "Maybe Victoria would be the place. Maybe it should be Vancouver. But it can't be done alone, in my opinion."

ON BUSINESS — Mr. Nicholson, who resigned from the force in 1959 over the government's refusal to reinforce RCMP detachments in then-strike-ridden Newfoundland, is in Victoria on business far removed from law enforcement.

As Deputy Chief Scout for Canada and chief commissioner of the St. John Ambulance Brigade he is covering both bases in a tour that has taken him away from his Ottawa home for the past four weeks.

STRONG VIEWS — But police organization still fascinates him and he has some strong views.

● There are far too many police forces in Canada.

● There is little standardization of conditions of police service across the land.

● There is nothing linking various forces other than "good will."

Mr. Nicholson said he would like to see the national development of "a concept of police service," linking the forces more closely through co-ordinated training program and provision for transfer from one force to another without losing accumulated experience benefits.

LARGER FORCES — He said there were some 800 individual police forces in the country, with rosters totaling 25,000 policemen.

"Of these, there are 594 forces of under 10 men," he said. "They can't be efficient operations under these circumstances. Some have good men, but opportunities are few and, indeed, may be nonexistent."

He urged steps be taken to see that tiny police forces were absorbed by larger forces or merged with other small forces.

Mr. Nicholson said he was not advocating either a single police force for the nation or complete provincial control of forces.

"I believe it is better to have forces of a size that would be genuinely efficient units," he said.

one day I too may find myself unemployed.

Very true, sir, but spare the day when I withhold news on those grounds.

THE FIRST WORD: There's a lot of speculation going about that the provincial government may enter the field of retail sale of gasoline.

There's certainly not enough information available for me to decide whether there's any truth to the speculation but it does lead to some intriguing possibilities.

The rumors have it that the government would sell its B.C.-produced gas—which would not have the new three cents a gallon tax increase on it—to bolster sagging revenues.

Recreation Debate
A Hit with MLAs

By ALEC MERRIMAN
Colonist Outdoor Editor

Party lines were forgotten yesterday as questions, advice and suggestions poured from every side of the Legislature when Recreation Minister Earle Westwood guided his department estimates through the house.

The recreational estimates will continue today.

Here are some of the highlights from the government policy and members' suggestions as they were discussed in the House yesterday:

'Jeep Road'

● Cowichan River anglers are not likely to get an angler's trail along the south bank of the river, but they may get a jeep road, because owners of private riverfront property would go for a government-built jeep road, where they are not interested in a trail.

● Hunters and fishermen are using a wildlife refuge which belongs to all the people of British Columbia and they should expect to contribute to social services and human needs, just as any other resource user does.

● If Victoria and outside municipalities are not interested in helping the Maritime Museum of British Columbia, now operated by the navy at Signal Hill, Vancouver wants it.

● The entire Campbell River water course should be included within the boundaries of Strathcona Park.

'Moonlighters' — The provincial government should take steps to get the federal government to do something about the moonlighting commercial fishermen—the men who go out in 14-foot rowboats, with 11 licenses and deep lines and take all the fish they like, while fishing alongside a sport fisherman with a light rod.

● The Municipal Act should be changed to allow municipalities and rural areas to co-operate in park developments in municipal fringe areas that will benefit everyone in an area.

● Nanaimo should not be allowed to sell its old golf course for subdivision homes, when provincial taxpayers' money is going to be used to develop Newcastle Island as a holiday paradise. If any place can use a second golf course, now or in the future, it is Nanaimo.

● The government should get the road to Tofino in better shape because recent publicity in the recreation department publication, Beautiful B.C., is going to bring an influx of holidaymakers who may carry back bad publicity about the road conditions.

● The government spends money to bring tourists to B.C. and the service industry—hotels, restaurants, motels and service stations—bleed them.

Museum — The Maritime Museum of B.C. should be moved to Rodd Hill and combined with a museum of the army on the west coast.

● Provincial game wardens (soon to be conservation officers) should be supplied with secretaries so they can put more time in the field.

● The game department offices should be moved from Vancouver and concentrated in Victoria.

● Flying fishermen are flying to B.C.'s wilderness lakes and game country and depleting stocks, which although the flying fishermen leave no revenue here, will cost B.C. taxpayers plenty to restock.

● Hunters in B.C. middle north are hunting from the road, wounding and killing moose, but not bothering to chase them into the bush, even for a couple of hundred yards, because they don't want the bother of packing them out.

● The recreation department should immediately embark upon a planned program for marine recreation, including anchoring spots, floats, marinas and launching pads.

Save Wild Flowers — Wild flowers in B.C. should be protected like the dogwood and nurseries should be established so that the public could get wild flower plants for their gardens.

● Outboard motors should be regulated on small lakes, but water skiers should be given sailing rights on bigger lakes, if they ski a reasonable distance from shore.

● A wildlife sanctuary should be set aside and named after veteran CCFer, the late Ernest Winch.

● Some day the leader of the opposition and the leader of the Liberal party may be seen in Victoria's new wax museum.

● The recreation department must immediately start a wildlife survey on the Arrow Lakes region, which would be flooded under the Columbia hydro proposals.

The answer to the Cowichan River trail came to a question asked by Opposition Leader Robert Strachan, who represents the Cowichan riding. Mr. Westwood said his department has investigated the proposals, first broached by the Cowichan Rod and Gun Club. Owners of private lands along the Cowichan want a jeep road that could be used for access to their property and for fire protection, he said.

Vancouver Move — Tom Bate (SC—Vancouver-Point Grey) offered to take the Maritime Museum to Vancouver where it would be appreciated. He said it should be combined with the St. Roch, former RCMP vessel, as a true maritime museum with the government giving a grant of about $30,000 a year.

Dan Campbell (SC—Comox) said it would make as much sense to take all forest revenue and spend it on forest protection, or all the revenue from mining and spend it on mining roads and grub staking, as it would to spend all fish and game licence revenues on wildlife conservation.

He said access roads built by the forest department had a material effect on the harvest of fish and game, through access, but hunters and fishermen never suggested they should help pay for them.

He was replying to arguments broached by other members that a bigger proportion of fish and game revenues should be spent on wildlife conservation.

Buttle Playground — Mr. Campbell visualized the Buttle Lake-Campbell River system area as the "multi-use playground area of Vancouver Island." He said he was not worried about giving away other parts of Strathcona Park to take in the more accessible and more useful areas of the Campbell River system, as originally Strathcona Park was just a line drawn on a map, anyway.

He said if a $5 saltwater licence is charged fishermen, the money should be spent on stream rehabilitation to provide fish for everybody, instead of measures to reduce the number of fishermen or reduce the total catch.

John Squire (CCF—Alberni) warned there is tendency for communities and municipalities to slacken off on park development, just because the provincial government is doing such a good job.

He was critical because Nanaimo plans to sell its old golf course, when the provincial government is building a park area at adjacent Newcastle Island. "We are not gaining anything," he said. "Nanaimo should be prepared to keep the facilities already in existence."

Honor Winch — Lois Hagen (CCF—Grand Forks—Greenwood) asked members to look around their districts for a suitable place in their constituencies which might make a good wildlife sanctuary to be named to commemorate Ernest Winch "who loved creatures—wildlife and humans."

Randolph Harding (CCF—Kaslo-Slocan) called for higher penalties for industries which pollute lakes and streams. He also charged the recreation department was discriminating against his CCF riding because it had provided an entrance to Kananis Park from Provincial Secretary Wesley Black's Nelson-Creston riding, but not from his Kaslo-Slocan riding.

Recreation Minister Westwood said the province of B.C. will never turn Garibaldi Park over to the federal government unless that government is prepared to say what it will do to develop it. He said the federal government has four parks in B.C. and hasn't developed one.

He said he felt the wildlife belonged to all the people of B.C., and although a good conservation program should be carried out, first considerations should be given to emergent needs such as social services and human needs.

He said preliminary wildlife surveys of the possible effects of Columbia River development on wildlife are now under way.

Methods Deplored — Vigorous teacher recruiting methods employed by northern school districts at the recent "trustee day" at UBC were criticised at Cowichan school board Thursday night.

Trustee Harold Whitfield said some of the districts had rooms set aside to interview prospective teachers and probed this was not the purpose of the special day.

Mr. Jones said that a considerable amount of material on the Cowichan district had been distributed "and I came away with quite a few names. He was granted permission to forward job application forms to any who wrote to him and showed interest in teaching in the district. I'll have to do it in self defence," he said.

The board will send a letter of protest on the matter to the B.C. School Trustees Association sponsors of the annual trustees day.

At the Gallery

Brilliant Color Clean Design Marks Exhibit

By INA D. D. UNTHOFF

I went up on Monday morning when the collection, "California Design 7" was being unpacked and laid out in the two main galleries.

What struck me first was the impact of color, rich reds in a rug, brilliant orange, ceru-lean blue, purple and green in a wall hanging, the black of stoneware jars or bone white of other pottery.

This made me feel that there is a marked difference between northern and southern Californian design. The nearness of Mexico no doubt is responsible for this, color is used with greater abandon in the south.
The Pasadena Art Museum has organized this show which is a cross-section of the work of prominent designers of southern California, and all the items are manufactured there and are for sale.

There is a good deal of furniture, tables, chairs, cabinets and desks, wall hangings or silk screen printed curtain materials of great beauty.

Interesting lamps, large and of unusual shape, will no doubt claim the attention of anyone looking for a distinctive note when furnishing a room.

Choosing house furnishings is an intensely personal problem, they must conform to function as well as position, they must express the individuality of the user through use of color and variety of texture. Clean lines and good proportions must fulfil all requirements of good design.

Ceramics play an important part in interior decoration and there is a wide choice of stoneware jars, bowls or wall plaques to provide just the right note of color or the most suitable shape for a favorite corner.

There are handsome hooked rugs for the floors and eccentric looking clocks in bright colors for the walls, dis-cussers that can be wheeled around with ease and electric ranges with instrument panels like aircraft.

If you dislike having to shine your own shoes, there is a shoe shine kit that you just plug in. It is complete with buffer which does all the work.

Then there are couches and beds of original design, lounges and stools, chairs of every shape and size and tables for every purpose.

This exhibition has been brought to Victoria through the women's committee's recently established cultural fund.

Prize Jersey Breaks Record

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 10-year-old cow named West Highland Bonita Ada, has become the first Canadian Jersey in 23 years to produce 1,000 pounds of butterfat in a year.

Owner R. C. Doan says the cow just broke the record with a fraction to spare. In 1959 the same cow set a Jersey record with a 305-day butterfat production of 862 pounds.

Long Work Week, Long Holiday Best for Canada, Says Senator

OTTAWA (CP)—A Saskatchewan senator suggested yesterday that Canadians would be better off working a six-day or even seven-day week with a three-month vacation.

Senator Ralph Horner said the weekend has become a time for people to "tear around and spend money" and end up back on the job Monday in no shape to work.

The Progressive Conservative senator told the Senate's manpower committee that he had given the matter long study and believes the trend towards a shorter working week is a mistake.

He said workers on his own farm had much happier lives when they worked six or seven days a week. "I dread a holiday or a long weekend coming up because I knew it always led to trouble," he said.

Workers, he said, should stay on the job for nine months and take three months off each year "to travel around the country and relax." There was little chance of relaxation in the present hectic rush of weekend activity.

During the three-month layoff, younger workers would have an opportunity to work and train by stepping into the vacant spot. Industries would avoid costly weekend shutdowns.

"We would accomplish a good deal more this way and produce our goods cheaper," he said.

The 76-year-old senator, who still runs a wheat farm near Blaine Lake, said such a system would go a long way towards easing unemployment, increasing trade and making family life happier.

He said it would also help farmers who are having difficulty competing in the labor market against the five-day week in business and industry.

'Poison' Label on Cigarets Asked by U.S. Senator

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI)—State Rep. Joseph
J. Horvath, (D-Cuyahoga) introduced a bill in the Ohio legislature Wednesday that would require all cigarette packages to be labelled "poison."

Under the bill, the packages would have to be stamped both front and back with the word "poison" in letters at least one-quarter-inch high.

Times Tower To Be Sold

NEW YORK (AP)—The New York Times has decided to sell the tower that gave Times Square its name.

The 24-storey Times Tower will be modernized and developed into an exhibition hall and office building.

But the electric news bulletin board that girdles the tower between the third and fourth floors will be continued.

Little Girl Found Drowned In Unused Nanaimo Well

NANAIMO (CP) — A three-year-old Nanaimo girl drowned in an abandoned well Wednesday in the city's second infant drowning tragedy within two months.

Christine Joanne Cunningham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cunningham, was found in the water-filled well by two neighbors, after a search for her had begun.

Red Cross Blitz Hits Campbell River

CAMPBELL RIVER — A week-long fund blitz will start in Campbell River March 19.

Red Cross funds chairman Ira Green said last night. The drive will get under way when Mr. Green and Fire Chief Oscar Thulin hoist a Red Cross flag at the waterfront fire hall, where it will be visible to all neighboring islands.

Last year the drive collected $2,035. Collectors are out to beat that record this year.

Fundraisers point out that the Red Cross has contributed heavily to Campbell River disasters. The district has received more than $1,000 back

PTA Fights Advertising In Schools

NANAIMO — A delegation from the Parent-Teacher Association Council of School District No. 68 has protested infiltration of commercial advertising in the schools.

Dr. John Strickland, spokesman for the group said: "We of the PTA Council feel that it should not be tolerated. Surely health charts and maps are available that are not advertising everything from breakfast cereals to chocolate bars."
